Kennedy Grows Mature, Decisive

ON TOUR WITH KENNEDY: There is no longer any reason to doubt that Sen. Jack Kennedy has made a tremendous breakthrough and that the image of him as a purposeful, decisive man grows in the minds of the people of his country. Nor is there any question but what he, himself, the inner Kennedy, has matured and gained in purpose and determination.

"More than ever before," he said, in a brief conversation after a luncheon following his vast and affectionate ticker-tape welcome in New York, "I want to win. It seems to me after watching the issues develop that the years ahead require new leadership. I hope we can be given the opportunity to supply it."

One of his staff summed it up saying, "From the beginning Jack had his mind set on this. Now his heart is in it, too. This explains the increasing drive and public acceptance. The people sense that his whole being is in what he says and does."

Whatever the answer, none can fail to recognize that he has come surging forward since the first debate and that support for him grows. But it is not possible now to predict a winner. If it were not for the religious issue, one would forecast a substantial Kennedy victory, but there is such an issue, and that it is well financed and is being stepped up in intensity against Sen. Kennedy is undeniable. That this is shameful and un-American is also true.

Both candidates attended an Al Smith dinner in New York, and the old ghost of the one-time happy warrior walked among us in all our conversations and speculations. Al Smith was born in a New York slum when the city had a population of a mere million persons. He became governor of this state. He served in public office for 40 years, and there was never any single instance of religion influencing his public life. He had the bad luck to be cast in a presidential election at a time when prohibition was a highly inflammatory, emotional issue. He was projected an alien image with his brown derby and his speech which was heavy East Side New York.

There is none of these elements in the public picture of young Kennedy who has caught the imagination of a very substantial number of his fellow citizens. He seems to be growing. But neither camp really thinks the election is won. This is obvious in their actions. Both are pulling up their heavy guns for final attacks in the large industrial states with the fat totals of electoral votes. Registration is up everywhere. The Democratic state and city organizations are at work. This is something Adlai Stevenson did not have.

Unemployment grows, and in some areas, this will be felt at the ballot box. But the Republicans are by no means idle. They are well financed. They have the incumbent in the White House. They possess the advantages of patronage and promises. And certainly Vice President Nixon is an intelligent man, though he does at times seem to feel insecure. In Arizona he could, for example, preach the importance of party loyalty and say he would support every Republican candidate in each state. And yet, hours later, in a distant state he could return to his old theme that the party is not important and urge that voters not hold to the ways of their grandparents but vote for the man.

There are rumors the Republicans refused the fifth television debate because they plan to drop a bombshell charge or so when it is too late to answer them well. Without question, they will try something spectacular. The President also will speak again. But in these days of quick communications, charges can be answered swiftly.

At any rate, the GOP managers wanted no debate on which last minute developments could be analyzed and discussed. From now on, there will be more and more rumors and smears. These are the aberrations of the last days of a hard fought campaign.

It is not yet determined, but one might venture the belief that if the Kennedy breakthrough continues to expand he can win a comfortable electoral victory. But, again, if the religious issue, which cannot be evaluated because much of it is underground, retards him, then the vice president would win narrowly. The renewed activity in the key states proves both know this to be true.

Missing Cochran Banker Found Dead in Cabin

COCHRAN (AP)—The body of Taylor Cook, 49, Cochran banker missing since Aug. 22, was found Thursday in an abandoned cabin near here.

A pistol, with one bullet discharged, lay by the side of the body.

A $240,000 shortage was found in the accounts of the Cook Banking Co. after Mr. Cook disappeared.

Bleckley County Coroner Dan Darsey said Mr. Taylor had been dead approximately eight weeks and probably met death the same day he vanished from Cochran.

A Negro walking through woodlands eight miles west of Cochran discovered the body. The place was only about two miles from where Mr. Cook's car was found abandoned. Mrs. Cook identified the body as that of her husband from clothing and a pair of spectacles.

A search by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of nearly two months for the banker came to a close. He had been charged with embezzlement and falsifying bank records.

Sheriff Gus Giddens asked Dr. Herman Jones, State Crime Laboratory technician in Atlanta, to check whether the bullet which entered Mr. Cook's temple had been fired from the gun found at the scene.

The disappearance of Mr. Cook from this middle-Georgia town had provided a mystery which intrigued townspeople, most of whom stood by him resolutely and argued that he must be alive somewhere.

Mr. Cook left a note at his

Nixon Asks Tax Shifts; Kennedy Has Cuba Plan

By HARRISON E. SALISBURY

NEW YORK—Vice President Nixon called Thursday for the stimulation of the nation's economic growth through a revision of personal and corporate tax rates and lower but broader excise taxes.

Nixon made public a 12-point economic program that included a proposal for the creation of a national economic council with powers similar to those of the National Security Council.

The proposals were advanced in an address at New York University to the Association of Business Economists.

The speech was the high point of a day the vice president devoted almost entirely to consultation with aides, working on future campaign addresses and preparing for Friday's fourth television debate with Sen. Kennedy.

Nixon conferred with retired Adm. Arthur W. Radford, one of his strongest supporters, on the Quemoy-Matsu issue, and discussed campaign problems with Atty. Gen. William Rogers and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

Nixon read his address to the economists, only occasionally diverting from his prepared text. To some who had not seen him since the Chicago convention he looked tired and drawn. A little facial muscle twitched nervously as he spoke.

Nixon warned against the financial perils that might result if "cheap-money dogmatists come to high public office"—a reference apparently to his Democratic opponent.

This, said Nixon, could produce

NEW YORK—Sen. John F. Kennedy called Thursday night for United States aid to "fighters for freedom" seeking to overthrow Premier Fidel Castro's regime, "in exile and in Cuba itself."

The Democratic presidential candidate also proposed that the U.S. consider seizing all Cuban assets here, which he estimated at $200,000,000 as of June.

Further, he said the United States "will have to work with both the Organization of American States and our European allies in order to promote collective action against communism in the Caribbean."

Kennedy made his proposals—which also urged removing conditions under which communism could thrive in Latin America—in a statement from his Biltmore Hotel campaign headquarters.

The Eisenhower administration embargo on most exports to Cuba he described as "a dramatic but almost empty gesture." He said it "merely accelerates and aids" a Castro policy of shifting Cuban trade to the Communist bloc.

"We must attempt to strengthen the non-Batista Democratic anti-Castro forces in exile, and in Cuba itself, who offer eventual hope of overthrowing Castro," Kennedy said.

Earlier Thursday, the senator issued a 3,000-word statement aimed at rebutting 13 charges by Vice President Nixon of "misstatements and distortions."

Kennedy's rebuttals stated:

Growth: The joint economic committee had reported "the average annual rate" from 1953 to 1959 was 2.3 per cent in the United States and 4.6 per cent in western Europe. Nixon had cited

Radford Sees Nixon, Blasts At Kennedy

NEW YORK (UPI)—Adm. Arthur W. Radford (Ret.), military adviser to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, said Thursday Sen. John F. Kennedy's stand on Quemoy and Matsu might lead to war if Kennedy is elected president.

Radford, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, attacked Kennedy's statement that the Nationalist Chinese-held off-shore islands are indefensible.

The admiral issued a statement after a conference with Nixon who is here preparing for

Mystery Death in Fiery Car May Be Murder, GBI Finds

Investigators now suspect foul play in last month's mysterious death by fire in Polk County of a man originally identified as Burton J. Austin, 33-year-old Tallapoosa welder.

And an autopsy, performed after the body was exhumed Sunday, proved the remains were not those of Austin, according to Denver Gaston of Carrollton, a Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent.

The charred remains, found in a burning station wagon in mid-afternoon Sept. 29, were first identified as being those of Austin. And Coroner Chester Russell ruled the death was accidental.

By JACK NELSON
Austin's wife declared in Tallapoosa Thursday that she still believes the remains were those of her husband.

She said she thought her husband was murdered. "I have told the sheriff what I thought was behind it," she said.

Gaston said an autopsy showed the remains had an appendix and natural teeth while Austin had false teeth and had had his appendix removed.

The GBI agent said the mystery has deepened with the discovery of human teeth, a burned dress shirt and several other articles just over the Alabama line, about six miles from Austin's home.

The articles were discovered in a wooded area three days after the fiery death.

Mrs. Austin said she last saw her husband on the morning of Sept. 29 when he drove off in his 1952 station wagon, telling her, "I'll be home early." He ostensibly was leaving for work at the Rome Plow Company in Cedartown.

About 3 p.m., passing motorists saw the station wagon burning on the shoulder of State Highway 100 and notified the State Patrol. The body was burned beyond

U.S. Calls Home Envoy to Cuba; Break Indicated

Increase In Tension Is Blamed

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States, in its second drastic move against Cuba in 24 hours, Thursday recalled U.S. Ambassador Philip W. Bonsal from Havana for "an extended period of consultations."

On the surface, the action appeared to foreshadow a possible break in diplomatic relations with the regime of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, especially since no date was fixed for Bonsal's return to his post.

But officials said the United States intended to send an ambassador back some time. However, there were indications the Eisenhower Administration would keep Bonsal in Washington until January and let the next administration decide the question.

EXPORTS BANNED

Bonsal's recall followed by just one day a Commerce department ban on nearly all U.S. exports to Cuba. Administration officials called the timing of the two moves a "coincidence," but they amounted to a one-two punch against the anti-U.S. Castro.

Officials let it be known that Bonsal was recalled because increased tension between the U.S. Embassy and the Castro Foreign Office made it "a waste of time" to keep an ambassador there. The tension made it impossible for Bonsal to carry out his official duties, they said.

CASTRO CHARGES PLOT

Another reason for Bonsal's recall may have been that the State department wants his help in preparing the U.S. reply to Castro's charges that this country is guilty of "aggression" against Cuba.

Castro has told the United Nations General Assembly the United States was plotting a "large-

Khrushchev Brags Of Red Atom Subs

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS
(Copyright 1960 by The New York Times Co.)

MOSCOW—Premier Khrushchev declared Thursday that the Soviet Union had atomic submarines capable of firing nuclear rockets.

He asserted, however, that they would not be sent to cruise near American shores because this would be "a criminal policy of the brink of war" and "the path of the cold war that could turn into a hot one."

It was the first time an official source of the Kremlin had suggested that the Soviet Union was in possession of nuclear submarines, although there has long been speculation in Western military circles that this was so.

There also had been no official mention before of the premier's assertion that the Soviet Union had developed a submarine rocket-launcher. It was not known whether he meant under-water launching. No announcement of a successful firing of such a rocket was made Thursday.

Khrushchev's claim came near the end of a 2-hour and 20-minute report to his people on the result of his 25-day mission to the United Nations General Assembly session in New York.

Aside from the submarine assertions, there was nothing new Pleasant weather is in prospect for the weekend in Atlanta, with a forecast of fair and cool Friday and fair Saturday, becoming warmer in the afternoon.

Harry Armstrong, forecaster at the U. S. Weather Bureau, also said the relatively high winds that prevailed in Atlanta Thursday are diminishing rapidly. There were gusts up to 23 miles an hour in the city Thursday.

Temperatures are due to range Friday from a low of 40 to a high of 64 degrees. Saturday's range is expected to be from a low of 40 to a high of 70 degrees.

Thursday's extremes were a low of 45 and a high of 67 degrees. These temperatures, bringing to the city the first cool spell of the fall season, were 6 degrees below normal for this time of year.

The forecaster also said there was a good chance over the weekend for first frosts in scattered parts of the extreme north portion of the state.

The temperature range Thursday at Neel Gap was a low of 34 and a high of 51.

'I'd Kill Her Again,' Says Convict in Girl Slaying

"If it was to do over, I'd kill her again."

Detectives said Herman Edward Peppers, 21, sat in a third-floor cell at City Jail Thursday and with no show of emotion made that statement in the knife slaying of the girl he broke out of prison to see.

Peppers was found hiding early Thursday under a house less than three blocks away from where red-haired Mrs. Geraldine Elliott, 19, died of multiple stab wounds Wednesday night.

Although he made no statement, Detectives J. G. Adams and J. C. Smith said Peppers freely discussed the knife slaying, his escape from a policeman who surprised him at the scene and the next few hours in which he watched police during their search for him.

"If I couldn't have her, then no one else could," he was quoted.

Detectives said Peppers told them Mrs. Elliott had written him several letters since he went to prison on Sept. 29 to begin an 11-year term for forgery, "assuring me that she had given up smoking and drinking and had straightened up."

"I broke out to see her," he was quoted.

Peppers told of meeting Mrs.

26 More Arrested in Sit-Ins; Many Counters Closed Here

Luncheon sit-ins and picketing expanded to at least 16 downtown establishments Thursday, leading to 26 arrests and numerous food-counter closings.

The Rev. A. D. Williams King, brother of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., was among 22 Negroes arrested on looting and disturbance charges and sentenced to 30 days in the city prison farm, with 10 days suspended.

Three other Negroes were bound over to Fulton Criminal Court on charges of violating Georgia's 1960 anti-trespass law.

counter and the 22 for failure to move after they were told they were blocking an entrance.

Municipal Court Judge James Webb also sentenced a white youth to 10 days on a disorderly conduct charge resulting from his actions in a variety store.

The youth, Harold Sprayberry, 21, of 1972 East Ave., NW, was arrested as part of incidents after which two Broad Street variety stores, Woolworth and Newberry's, were closed briefly.

The Woolworth store was closed shortly after Sprayberry strolled past the Negroes spraying room deodorant.

The Negroes broke into applause and a few shouted "bravo" at the performance. Sprayberry was arrested after he moved over to Newberry's.

During their brief closings, the stores put chains up across their counter seats. The counters had been closed to service all along.

The story was much the same all over town. Most establishments closed their counters during the whole day, though a few served whites part of the time.

Round 4 Held To Hour; Nixon Cool to Round 5

NEW YORK (AP)—The fourth and probably the last radio-television debate between the two major presidential candidates Friday night will be limited to one hour.

This was announced late Thursday after a conference between agents of the candidates and the networks.

ASKS ROUND 5

The question grew out of Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy's proposal to hold a fifth debate as close as possible to the Nov. 8 election.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, his Republican opponent, turned down Kennedy's proposal, suggesting instead that Friday's final debate be extended by one hour, and that viewers be allowed to telephone in questions.

After Thursday's conference, it was announced: "It became clear that, in the time involved, an acceptable program with public participation in the questioning of the candidates could not be developed. It was agreed that on Friday night the program should be the one-hour program on foreign affairs as originally planned in August."

The debate will go on the air at 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time from the American Broadcasting Co. TV center on West 66th Street, largest studio in the city. It also will be broadcast and televised by NBC and CBS, and broadcast by the Mutual network.

Thursday's announcement of the conference also said: "Representatives of the candidates will give further consideration to a type of format which would allow public participation in the questioning."

DOOR OPEN

This seemed to leave the door open for a possible fifth debate. However, a Kennedy spokesman said Nixon's representative still is opposed to a fifth debate and that no date for any further discussion of the matter is set.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger, speaking for Kennedy, said the Massachusetts senator will make a final effort, probably Friday, to get Nixon to accede to a fifth debate, by telegraphing the vice president a formal challenge. However, Salinger held out little hope that Nixon would accept.

During the day, Kennedy needed Nixon for rejecting a fifth debate.

"It is an interesting fact that he is willing to debate with a mimeograph machine that permits only one side, but is unwilling to make his answers and charges in direct TV confrontation with 70 million people watching," Kennedy said.

TV SETUP

On the air, Nixon will stand on the left and Kennedy on the right of a foot-high stage, each provided with a podium and stool.

They will face a panel of four radio-television newscasters—John Edwards of ABC, Walter Cronkite of CBS, Frank Sinatra of Mutual, and John Chancellor of NBC. Quincy Howe of ABC will serve as moderator.

There will be no live audience, except for three news photographers and three reporters.

Ike's Handshake Wins $50 Bet for Ex-Sergeant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A man who broke through President Eisenhower's security guard and shook hands with the Chief Executive during a motorcade here Thursday said he did it on a $50 bet.

"Nobody tried to stop me. I just said, 'Hey, Ike, remember Fort Benning,' and he turned around, smiled and gave me a great big handshake," reported William Maurer, 52, a retired Army master sergeant now working as a mail clerk.

Maurer said the $50 bet was with a fellow worker and that he referred to the fact that he had seen Eisenhower dedicate Stillwell Field at Ft. Benning, Ga., years ago.

Transplant Doctors Win Nobel Award

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—An English and an Australian scientist to transplant organs from one human body to another were awarded jointly the $43,625 Nobel Prize for Medicine Thursday.

Sharing the honor were Prof. Peter Brian Medawar, 45, of London and Sir Frank Macfarlane Burnet, 61, of Melbourne who discovered an "immunity barrier" transplants and learned how to break the barrier.

Both men are well known in American academic circles. Medawar lectured at Harvard University in 1949 and gave the Harvey Lectures in New York in 1957. Burnet lectured at Harvard in 1944, Johns Hopkins University in 1950 and Vanderbilt University in 1958.

Burnet's experiments, started in 1949, showed that the human body will reject grafts from other bodies because immunological patterns vary as widely from person to person as do fingerprints. He developed a theory that these patterns were developed, not inherited.

Medawar took this theory and affirmed it through a series of experiments. He and his associates developed an "acquired immunological tolerance" technique in which the body "memorizes" foreign patterns introduced prenatally and thereafter is able to accept them.

The breakthrough in theory by Burnet and Medawar, who first published a paper on their experiments in 1953, enabled doctors to transplant human organs.

Their experiments also gave medical researchers a new viewpoint on the cause and the treatment of many illnesses where normal immunity reactions are obstacles instead of aids.

The prize winners were announced after a two-hour meeting of the Teachers College of the Caroline Medico Chirurgical Institute. Both were invited to ceremonies Dec. 10—birthdate of prize donor Alfred Nobel—to receive their awards from King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden.

U.S. Prestige High, Ike Adviser Insists

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of a presidential committee studying U.S. cold war activities said Thursday the United States is the most respected nation in the world and "its prestige is pre-eminent."

Industrialist Mansfield D. Sprague, chairman of the committee appointed by President Eisenhower, made the assertion in a statement issued by the White House. It came amid a mounting controversy over the state of U.S. prestige abroad and alleged findings by the Sprague committee.

CALLED LOW

The Washington Post and Times Herald said Thursday morning it had learned that the findings of the Sprague committee showed that U.S. prestige has been declining overseas ever since Russia launched the first earth satellite in October, 1957.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee followed up by accusing the White House of suppressing certain foreign policy documents which could hurt the presidential election chances of Republican Richard M. Nixon.

He said the administration had withheld two major groups of papers—the text of Nixon's conversations with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow last year and reports by the U.S. Information Agency on U.S. prestige.

A few hours later, Sprague said

U.N. Backs Lumumba Supporter

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Patrice Lumumba's bid for power got a powerful boost from the United Nations Thursday while the military regime of Col. Joseph Mobutu tottered on the verge of collapse.

The United Nations openly gave its support to Cleophas Kamitatu, president of Leopoldville Province and one of Lumumba's chief backers. A 372-man U.N. unit bolstered Kamitatu's forces, which are in an open clash with Mobutu's ill-disciplined and crumbling army.

BOW TO AUTHORITY

Kamitatu told Mobutu to bow to his authority or face expulsion from the capital. He threatened to take his populous and important Leopoldville Province out of the rest of the Congo. He accused Mobutu's soldiers of maintaining a regime of bloodshed, terror and rape in the capital city.

Kamitatu has been one of the principal forces behind Lumumba who was ousted as premier by President Joseph Kasavubu. Kamitatu has never recognized Mobutu's authority.

PLEADS FOR HELP

Followed by 100 loyal officers, Mobutu sped to U.N. headquarters to plead for help for his pro-Western military regime which chased the Soviet and Red satellite missions from the Congo.

He emerged after a three-hour session, tearful, and said: "The United Nations wants me to get out."

It has been made increasingly clear in recent weeks that the United Nations was doing everything to thwart Mobutu's efforts to impose his military regime on the country.

Ike Assails Charge Of Slipping Prestige

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower, hitting apparently at Sen. John F. Kennedy, Thursday night denounced those who contend that America's prestige has slumped to an all-time low. The President called this "debasing of the truth."

Eisenhower, without mentioning the Democratic presidential nominee by name, also termed this an "irresponsible practice of defacing the American portrait." The President added that related to this is "the development of an almost compulsive desire to make counterfeit comparisons, especially between our nation and others."

JABS AT KENNEDY

Kennedy has been charging that United States prestige has deteriorated during the Eisenhower administration. He also has asserted in his campaign that the Soviet Union's rate of economic growth is moving at a swifter pace than that of this country. Eisenhower is on a cross-country speaking tour which the White House has labeled nonpolitical. Thursday, however, there could be virtually no doubt that the President was hitting out at Kennedy.

Eisenhower arrived by plane at midday from Palm Springs, Calif., and got a rousing welcome to San Francisco from a crowd which Mayor George Christopher estimated at 250,000 or more.

URGES CRITICAL LOOK

In his speech, prepared for a dinner meeting of San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, Eisenhower said Americans must not be afraid to look at themselves and maintain a steady critical self-examination.

Then he cut loose, saying: "But while maintaining a healthy critical insight, let us not be misled by those who, inexplicably, seem so fond of deprecating the standing, condition and performance of the entire nation."

HITS COMPARISONS

"Surely we must avoid smugness and complacency. But when in the face of a bright record of progress and development, we hear some misguided people wallowing into the status of a second-class power and that our prestige has slumped to an all-time low, we are simply listening to debasement of the truth."

"Related to this irresponsible practice of defacing the true American portrait, is the development of an almost compulsive desire to make counterfeit comparisons, especially between our nation and others."

As he did in a Detroit speech Monday, Eisenhower said because of differing backgrounds and situations, such comparisons rarely contain any validity.

GIs in Europe Get New Chief

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP)—Gen. Bruce C. Clarke took over Thursday as the new commander of the U.S. Army in Europe and of NATO's Central Army Group. Top Allied military leaders attended the ceremony at European headquarters here.

Not a Hair Of Truth to It

NEW YORK (UPI)—Herbert G. Klein, Vice President Richard M. Nixon's press secretary, Thursday night denied reports that Nixon has started wearing a hairpiece.

"I've heard all kinds of charges in this campaign, but this is the silliest," Klein said. "It's obviously and definitely false."

Oust Castro By Force, Legion Asks

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The American Legion called on the United States Thursday to overthrow the Cuban government of Fidel Castro, by military force if necessary.

The Legion also urged the use of military force anywhere in the Western Hemisphere to prevent the founding or continuance of communist government.

Calling the Castro government a "cancer," the Legion convention shouted approval of a resolution urging "a total economic boycott against Cuba, in order to bring about the fall of the present Castro regime."

If this fails, the resolution said, the Congress and the President should "take all necessary actions to make available and to apply our military supplies and forces to effect this objective, in order to allow the Cuban people to establish a non-communistic government."

The resolution insisted on unyielding defense of the Guantanamo naval base and for "material and moral support" to anti-Castro exiles willing to fight the Premier's regime.

Who Is Speaking Mr. Nixon's Mind?

Vice President Nixon may not be able to stand much more help from his friends. They either say too much or too little.

He had to disown Henry Cabot Lodge's helpfulness on how he should compose his Cabinet.

He left the Chicago convention expecting Nelson Rockefeller's stout help in New York but Gov. Rockefeller has dragged his feet.

His most important supporter, President Eisenhower, has had very little to say beyond a defense of his own record.

And now he has received the help of Admiral Radford.

To find Admiral Radford serving as a military adviser to Mr. Nixon sends a shiver through those who remember his eagerness to intervene in Indochina with an air strike at Dien Bien Phu. President Eisenhower's veto of the idea, at the urging of an incredulous Britain, possibly spared us the most debatable entry into war in our history.

Now the aggressive admiral, after a conference with Mr. Nixon, has announced he thinks Quemoy and Matsu should be defended for military reasons. Period.

This not only goes beyond Sen. Kennedy's position, but it goes beyond Mr. Eisenhower's position, and presumably beyond Mr. Nixon's.

The Eisenhower position is to defend Quemoy and Matsu against an attack if it is a prelude to an attack on Formosa and to leave China guessing as to what we will consider as a prelude. Admiral Radford has dropped the qualification and advocated defending the offshore rocks under any circumstances.

If Mr. Nixon is going to accept this advice from his military adviser, he ought to tell the nation so now, or else give it the Lodge treatment.

Why Pack the Boards And Damage Education?

Among the 19 amendments to the State Constitution to be voted on in the Nov. 8 general election are two which we consider would be most harmful to the future of education in Georgia.

Amendment No. 10, which would add the State Commissioner of Agriculture—regardless of whom he might be—to the Board of Regents of the University System, would be an unwarranted interference in the operation of the system. Strictly a special interest proposal, it would pack the board with a member whose office would be permanent and beholden to a special segment of the people. He could be the most powerful man on the board.

If this amendment is accepted, a precedent would be set whereby other special interests could demand a right to permanent representation. This would make a shambles of orderly administration and return us to a system long since discarded as harmful.

Amendment No. 10 should be defeated.

Another proposal could pack the State Board of Education with the addition of five state-at-large members to the present 12. They would be appointed by the governor without geographical distribution required. This amendment No. 3 unwisely stipulates that no one may be named who has been professionally connected with education—the only apparent qualification for appointment.

This amendment would make the board unwieldy and highly vulnerable to political pressures. It would make the task of public school administration more difficult. We recommend its defeat as in the best interest of education in the state.

Morgan Falls Shows Cooperation's the Way

In an address yesterday at Morgan Falls Dam, Mayor Hartfield hailed what he sees as a new spirit of harmony between cities, counties, state and private industry in Georgia in working together for the common good.

The immediate occasion was completion of the joint project under which the Chattahoochee River was rerouted at Morgan Falls by the City of Atlanta and the Georgia Power Company. This does indeed represent the finest in cooperation between a municipality and private industry for the public good.

Why not extend this cooperation between private business and government into other fields, the mayor asks? Why, for instance, shouldn't Atlanta business interests help with financing a new city auditorium or civic center which is so badly needed but for which the city has no funds?

Why not, indeed? All business and industry stand to gain from Atlanta's mushrooming growth. But without providing those assets which contribute to a city's culture and human happiness, there will be erosion and lack of civic pride. As the city government struggles to provide the additional services, it could stand some help in the social areas which are just as essential.

The mayor cites the examples of other cities in which civic-minded businessmen and foundations have helped to finance civic centers. It's time for our own leaders to give the idea serious consideration.

Talmadge's Farm Plan Deserves Further Study

There is no problem more complex in the American economy today than the plight of the farmers. Both presidential candidates know this.

Sen. Herman Talmadge continues to plug for his two-price plan which has much merit. Under it "the farmer would plant what he pleases, be responsible for selling what he pleases and receive from the government a guarantee of the difference between full parity and the price he receives for that portion of his crop consumed in this country."

The surplus would be placed on the world market at prevailing prices.

Advancing technology, of course, has created the problem which has driven millions from the farms and left us with the mountains of surpluses. Existing farm programs which have tried to maintain the status quo have failed. Increased production drives prices down and the subsidies and surpluses go higher.

In 1940 the American farmer produced enough food and fiber for himself and 11 others. Today he produces enough for 25 persons. The 7,400,000 American farm workers produce more than 33 million Russian workers.

Producing 50 per cent more than he did before World War II, the American farmer does the job with 30 per cent fewer man hours of work. Translated into economics this means we need fewer farmers, less acreage in crops and more markets. In terms of human beings it means an entirely different thing.

Adjusting supply to demand while enabling those to remain on the farm who desire to do so are the basic questions. Thus far no solution has been found. It might be a good idea for Washington to explore Sen. Talmadge's plan further.

Election Law Muddle Should Be Corrected

Secretary of State Ben Fortson and a number of legislators who have contacted him are right in maintaining that Georgia's 5 per cent voter petition law should be revised to include local races.

The present law is so leaky that some "independents" are running for county offices in the November general election, after being defeated in the September Democratic primary, without even being required to present a petition signed by 5 per cent of the registered voters.

Other revisions are in order. For instance, legislators in some counties have to be approved in two Democratic primaries before they become official nominees. This is a needless and wasteful practice, as is demonstrated by the fact that the other counties have only one Democratic primary and fare just as well if not better.

Uniform regulations on primaries, with the law spelled out on the 5 per cent provision at the next session of the General Assembly, are needed to unridle the present confusion.

Atlanta Should Prepare For U.S. Aid to Transit

Sen. Kennedy, campaigning in New York, has endorsed a detailed Democratic program aimed at solving "the vital problems of our cities and suburbs."

Among the proposals is federal aid to mass transit systems.

It can be expected that should the Democrats win and should such a program be initiated, rapid transit would come in for a major share of the funds available. This is simply because rapid transit is the only economical way for cities approaching a population of a million and half or two million to move people in and out.

Public money is necessary for rapid transit—both to prepare for it and to construct it. (The only plan so far offered for rapid transit here calls for public construction, with users paying for operation.)

The cities that are ready are the ones that will get the federal aid when it becomes available. For that reason alone (and there is also the compelling reason that without getting ready for rapid transit this city could stunt its growth) the Atlanta area ought to prepare to move ahead.

Eugene Patterson The Cheerleader Got There Late

"Contrary to what some would have you believe," said Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd on Tuesday, Georgia's laws requiring school segregation "have not changed one iota."

Somebody send Garland a ticket to last week's football game. Better yet, let the taxpayers gather up some Confederate money, with the unchanged writing still upon it above the unchanged signature of Judah P. Benjamin, and from this fund, on every payday, let the lieutenant governor draw his salary.

Contrary to what some would have you believe, the Confederate bills and last week's football tickets have not changed one iota. They retain all the value of Georgia's unchanged school laws.

For a politician of Mr. Byrd's intelligence to throw the public such a marshmallow at this late date is discouraging indeed.

The lieutenant governor knows very well that Georgia's "unchanged" laws are worthless and, when tested, cannot stand in the light of repeated court decisions that have cut the legs off of them.

To go on treating these dead-letter laws as live wire defenses is beneath Mr. Byrd, who knows better. The people know the truth, too. They have had enough sophistry. They no longer desire to have a politician sprinkle their ear and tell them it's raining.

They want to know what their politicians intend to do next, now that they know the segregation laws, which have not changed one iota on paper, do not have one iota of validity in court.

We would refer Mr. Byrd to Wednesday's statement by Newell Edenfield, president of the Georgia Bar Assn., who urges the state to jettison the useless laws now.

"If you have segregation laws you cannot win. They don't do any good so far as preserving segregation. They just provide Negroes with built-in cases," Mr. Edenfield said.

"No school district ever won a case in a state which has on its books laws requiring segregation," he said. And neither has a school board lost a case where segregation laws have been repealed.

Contrary to what some would have you believe, the defense-minded Mr. Byrd got to the game a little late with his unchanged ticket and he is cheering "Hold That Line!" to an empty field.

The White House Will Be a Snap

WASHINGTON—It begins to appear that the job of actually being president—a job long known among politicians with ghoulish candor as "a man killer"—may seem hardly tougher than a winter vacation to the winner of this presidential campaign.

It is not easy to see how the White House, for all its pressures, can be too great a burden to the man who emerges victorious from this incredible trial-by-fire of 1960. For, after all, a "sitting president" can, sometimes, really sit—and alone.

Since circumstances have plunged the contenders into this mauling, this savagely demanding contest, the country is fortunate beyond belief that both are young and healthy. Otherwise, we might find we had killed both our candidates before electing either.

The people who read the dispatches of this or that aspirant's appearances here and there can hardly realize the true story of personal effort and sacrifice behind all these scattered little stories. For either candidate a fairly relaxed day will run to 18 hours, a fairly brisk day to 20 hours. There are speeches in the early morning chill, in the clamorous noonday, in the small, exhausted hours long past midnight.

Harold Martin Here's One Way To Name Birds

We shall now take up the case of the striding joree. A letter comes from a nice lady named Mrs. Margaret W. Kendrick who says she is about to lose faith in me as a bird-watcher.

"My dear friend," says Mrs. Kendrick in a firm but friendly tone, "a towhee, or joree, as many call this bird, does not stride. A mocking bird may stride, or even strut on occasion. And even a thrasher, which I am afraid you may have confused with a thrush, may also stride.

But a joree does not stride. He jumps like a broad jumper with both feet. He jumps and kicks back the leaves, and then he eats the bugs or the worms, or whatever, which he uncovers, and that is the way he gets his food.

I suggest you get you some new glasses, or a new bird book, for I am very fond of your articles about birds and I do not wish you spreading misinformation about their habits."

I am very grateful to Mrs. Kendrick for straightening me out in the matter of the towhee, or joree, and I promise that I will pay more attention from now on as to the way birds move about. It is very disconcerting to be unmasked as a phony bird watcher.

In fact, in writing about birds in the future, I think perhaps I shall merely refer to them as big birds or little birds, like a noted ornithologist I once met in the Okefenokee Swamp. He was a government guide and I had been told he knew everything there was to know about the flora and the fauna of the swamp, from alligators to eagles.

Anxious for enlightenment, I

'Let Reason, Experience Dictate Actions After Airplane Crashes,' Quesada Writes

Washington, D.C.—Your editorial commenting on our reaction to the tragic accident at Boston has been most gratefully noticed. The hysterical reaction would have been to ground all planes or to exterminate all birds. Between these extremes there are many courses which rash thinking might have dictated. The necessity, as you realized, was for prompt and sober action.

So far the investigations have upheld our original theories very well. We can at least be sure that there was no question of structural deficiency in the aircraft in question and therefore no need to reconsider the findings which exhaustive tests had placed at our disposal. We will continue to do all we can to encourage and coordinate reasoned approaches to both problems involved: the thorough testing of the Electra, and the further study of bird control.

Meanwhile, we must let reason and experience dictate our actions. In supporting such an approach to this problem, your editorial has effectively served both the Federal Aviation Agency and the public it represents. For this support you have my deep and full gratitude.

E. R. QUESADA, Administrator, Federal Aviation Agency.

Over the River And by the Lea

What's in a name? Well, there can be a river and valley. Take my new friend Henry Owsley at Pensacola for example. In England there was a river, Owsley, and the valley was the Lea. So the folks in the valley of the Owsley came to be known as the Owsleys. Henry says the "w" and the "s" are hard to join, so first thing you know, some were writing it "Ousley." That's why the world has Owsleys and Ousleys.

With the Methodist Church in the fast-growing Glenwood section of Greater Atlanta, it's "Ousley," Ousley Chapel.

POINT OF ORIGIN: A news release from Ireland says more and more Americans touring in Northern Ireland are hunting ancestors. That is they seek to trace the family to Irish-Scot origin in the 18th century.

The tribe story is of the ancestor hunter who found a horse thief hanging from a high limb on the family tree.

I tried a little backtracking the other day and wound up in the infirmary.

Up in Oregon, they told of a shop in San Francisco which specializes in Scottish imports. They said the shopkeeper has a book in which you can learn about your name.

Killing time in Portland, I tracked down the address in the "Frisco phone book, 347 Geary Street, named for Gen. Geary, a Sherman lieutenant at Kennesaw Mountain.

I had no idea we were going to the city nor that we would walk where Geary did. But we did. I found the book.

I'm not sure I'm glad. There were Aikmans in Lanarkshire, Scotland in 1296. The family seal was a fox with upraised paw. But no clan affiliation. Strictly lone foxes, that is.

As for the name, "no satisfactory explanation," the book said. Could be "Aegmund" or "Aecemund," for oak man. Or "Ace mann," for an infirm person.

I'll stick to the oak, thank you. And don't need to call the tree doctor.

TOO DEAR: Scottish imports were dear, man. I settled for a jokebook, "Scotland Laughing." A couple of lines in the preface are worth the $1.25, even before you get into the jest part: "... it's guide to dread the worst, for the best will be the welcomer. Fears are often liars."

Talmadge Walking A Tight Rope Now

Atlanta—Sen. Talmadge is truly walking a tight rope in the present campaign. He doesn't want the Democratic ticket and its radical planks tied around his neck when he runs for the Senate next time, neither does he want to be accused of being a traitor to the Democratic Party.

Kennedy Seems To Sniff Victory

EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY—At long last, Sen. Kennedy and his public have begun to speak to each other. Heretofore communication between them has been the most sketchy variety. Yowling women eyed his lean grace, his auburn hair and screamed, clutched their companions, covered their faces and stood besotted while he stood stiffly before them, showered them with statistics, gave them a half smile and hurried off to a new frontier.

The yowling still goes on. But the senator has learned to take it with a grin. He grasps hand after hand, never goes by a throng in the cavalier fashion of the primaries.

And now he no longer talks at people as if they were a recalcitrant, resisting mass unaccountably standing between him and the prize he has so long sought.

He talks to them and they talk back.

The signs are that on the homestretch after one of the longest in-service training periods of American political history, he has begun to enjoy campaigning a little bit.

On the platform in the last two days in Ohio and Florida, he has not only remembered to mention the names of local candidates; he has, in the time-honored fashion begun to predict their victories.

With the American Legion, wearing an overseas cap, he told the group which more than any other in the Republic likes to think it can lick any man in the house, that America is slipping. The Legionnaires were sullen. The new Sen. Kennedy did not and over again. It will take millions of our tax dollars to keep them pacified, and they will still lean toward communism.

It is past time for the American people to stop bickering at each other. It's time to stop trying to enforce by law social equality, which cannot be done in a true democracy. We had better stand together, North, South, East and West, during these critical times.

WILLIAM D. BENNETT

'Why Doesn't Paper Report on Kennedy?'

Decatur—Mr. McGill's column "Nixon Wins Minority Votes in N.Y. Garment District," which outlines the civil rights views of Mr. Nixon, is another example of your biased and subjective news reporting.

In all fairness to the readers of your paper, why have you never quoted one word of Sen. Kennedy's address on Labor Day in Cadillac Square in Detroit when the senator expressed his radical views on civil rights? In this speech Kennedy advocated race-mixing "everywhere—in the schools, in the homes, in the churches, in the lunch counters."

BLANCHE H. McMORRIS.

Editor's Note: The address was reported in a story under a three-column headline on Tuesday, Sept. 6. The news story contained this sentence: "Kennedy made his strongest civil rights speech of the campaign to date, declaring his desire to end racial discrimination everywhere in the schools, homes, churches and at the lunch counters."

Three, Then Four... Then Nine ---This Is How the Sit-In Began

There were but three. It was 10:45 a.m. They had come from Forsyth street, passed Rich's, Inc., along the Alabama side, and, killing time until the 11 o'clock sit-in deadline, the two male students and a lipstick-coed appraised jewelry in the window of a shop on Broad. The three Negroes eased a clock, too. Because as time ticked they re-crossed Alabama, boarded an upturning escalator, and five rides took them to their target: the Magnolia Room, Rich's supersmart sit-down dining room.

And there were four.
Another Negro girl, well dressed in a yellow and grey suit, joined the original three. She took a place beside one of the boys. They smiled, talked softly, and even in the midst of a mess of their own making the girls were mindful of style. Separately the co-eds walked to a display of golden slippers.
Then there were five. A young man.
And six. A third girl had answered the call.

It was after 11 now and time to charge the serving lines. As one, the six rose and stepped forward.

This is the way the sit-in started.

In a matter of minutes Capt. R. E. Little Jr. was at the side of Frank H. Neely, chairman of the board at Rich's. "Have you asked them to leave?" was the captain's question. Then, "Do you want them to leave?" Mr. Neely said that he did.

Refusal to leave meant jail. That's what it was to be, then.

Negroes Nos. 8 and 9 were in the basement. "I fought three years for freedom," said Bobby Schley, a Morris Brown student and Army veteran. "I'll take service or jail."

Capt. Little let him have what he wanted. This first load of eight went in by red paddy wagon. From behind the bars at the back of the rolling lockup Patricia Ann Smith, 18, talked. She said for her it would be jail, not bail.

"You ever been in jail?" the 18-year-old student was asked. She shook her head. "You don't know what it's like?"

The Negro miss who wanted to be martyr-like soon saw. She was searched, finger-printed and sent to a cell.

There was company to come. Dr. Martin Luther King, leader of the non-violent resisters, "felt a moral responsibility to join in the worthwhile movement."

Capt. Little's segregation specialist felt a responsibility to send him to jail, along with student integration chief Lonnie King, when they left Rich's bridge luncheon counter for off-limits segregated seats.

These were but the first. The starting six. And then the two. And then the Kings.

Before the day was done more than 50 others were arrested, battling to be behind bars, preferring jail to bail, and Atlanta was the sit-in center of the South.

These, then, are the sins of segregation. Or of integration. Sins all the same.

Potomac Fever

One lady voter is confused by the presidential debates. As she gets it, Nixon wants to drop Hawaii and Alaska from the Union—and substitute Quemoy and Matsu.

Kennedy doesn't want to surrender Quemoy and Matsu. He merely wants to yield himself two minutes to shoot the guy who asked him about the islands in the first place.

Republicans demand that Harry Truman apologize. But Harry, taking his cue from Nixon, hopes the day will never come when a former president of the United States will feel called upon to express regrets to anybody.

curity, health and retirement benefits, opportunities for travel and adventure—even the phenomenal opportunities for marriage. But little is said to convince a young woman that she is needed in her country's service.
And yet Col. Mary Louise Milligan, director of the Women's Army Corps, showed us a letter from a former WAC sergeant which convinced me that love of country may attract more women to the services than personal considerations.
"Dear Col. Milligan," wrote the former sergeant. "Today I bought a house. The man at the bank said to me as I signed the papers, 'It's unusual for a single woman to have accomplished so much all by herself.' I thought about that and I know that I did not do it alone. The GI bill gave me the college education that enabled me to reach an executive position that would allow me to invest in property. It was a GI loan that made it possible for me to buy.

"My heart is so full that I must, in some way, thank the Women's Army Corps for all that it has put into my life, monetarily and spiritually. I remember much today as I live with the excitement of a new home. I remember and am grateful."

The young woman was orphaned at the age of 17 and at the age of 21 she had used up the money her family left her and had to leave nurse's training. She joined the WAC—still bewildered and resentful of a world that was too mean, a world without foundation or values.

She spoke of her beginning in the corps—the heat, the Hobby hats, the parade ground at Ft. Des Moines, and a petite officer, now Col. Milligan, who spoke to them about responsibility to God, country and corps.

The Army, she said, "became my family" and her letter was a testimonial of gratitude for what she learned of living, responsibilities, self-discipline and the depth and meaning of true service to the country we all love.

"I remember that I am not alone now, was not alone then, and that I owe much to the officers and women of the corps. I want to share my gratitude with you," she concluded.

It is not the kind of letter captains of industry are likely to receive from employees of three years' service.

Now There's Need For Fifth Freedom

Our four freedoms are familiar stock. But now one perceiving soul is calling for the fifth freedom: the freedom from the necessity of being a big shot! That's a needed freedom indeed. Much of our life's structure is riddled with status, belonging, the mania for more, the success myths, the desire to keep up with the Joneses and if possible to pass them on a curve.

Too much attention is being given to the "big shot." The "top dog" is the silent envy of the aspiring millions.

Is it necessary to subscribe to this shallow trend? Can there not be effective leadership without the lordly attitude? Is it so much a matter of position or disposition? Is it attitude that matters or attitude?

In one of the shortest books of the Bible, III John, the author refers to one Diotrephes who loved to have preeminence among the brethren. His number has been legion in commerce, finance, education, politics as well as religion. These words were Greek the first time they were spoken, and for that matter, still are: "In honor prefer one another."

Most educational philosophies accent the very opposite: in honor prefer yourself or no one will prefer for you. The golden rule is rewritten to read, "do unto others before they do you. If you don't make a reputation for yourself, who will do it for you? So the feverish pace... and we get caught in the whirlwind dervish of competition with its endless frustrations, its hourly contradictions and its deceiving mirage of ill fortune.

Maybe somebody needs to rescue the old-fashioned adage about "it matters not whether you won or lost but how you played the game." Maybe it still is in order to inject the timely

This Letter Is Not the Kind Captains of Industry Receive

WASHINGTON—We fell to speaking of patriotism among ourselves at the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services. Each of the directors of the various branches of the service had spoken of their recruitment efforts. Col. Emma Riley of the Air Force had just finished telling us that she wants 25 women engineers this year, 16 electrical engineers, six aeronautical engineers, and three mechanical engineers.

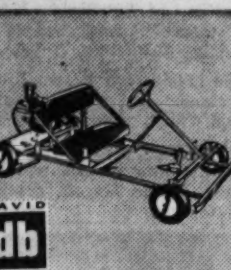

"You'll never get them," a DACOWITS member murmured at my end of the table. "When you think what industry pays engineers these days, can you imagine a girl settling for a second lieutenant's pay?"

"There are other compensations," the woman across the table said. "What about patriotism? Uncle Sam needs you as the post office posters used to say."

It seems to me that recruiters seeking women don't make enough of our country's needs nowadays. They emphasize se-

American Never Had It
So Rough in Leopoldville

By MIKE MAHONEY
Special to The Constitution

LEOPOLDVILLE, Republic of Congo — Sunday, Oct. 9, was definitely not a quiet Sunday for Roy A. Harrell Jr., 24, of Ozona, Tex. It started off pleasantly enough but ended up like a nightmare.

Harrell, a graduate student at the School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University, Washington, D.C., was on his way from the United States to Stellenbosch University in the Union of South Africa to do research on Portuguese Africa. He had stopped off in Brazzaville, Congo Republic, on Saturday and decided to visit Leopoldville — just across the Congo River — on Sunday.

Harrell, a graduate student at the School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University, Washington, D.C., was on his way from the United States to Stellenbosch University in the Union of South Africa to do research on Portuguese Africa. He had stopped off in Brazzaville, Congo Republic, on Saturday and decided to visit Leopoldville — just across the Congo River — on Sunday.

He chartered a taxi in Brazzaville and the taxi came across the river with him on the 6:30 a.m. ferry. When he landed on the Leopoldville side, he went through immigration and customs without any trouble, but the taxi driver was held up. The driver told Harrell to start walking towards the Boulevard Albert, Leopoldville's main street, and that he would meet him there in a few minutes.

"I had walked about three-quarters of the way up the street," Harrell related, "when suddenly I was jumped from behind by four Force Publique (Congolese Army) soldiers and pulled down into the street. They were all armed with rifles and bayonets and they proceeded to kick and pummel me. After about five minutes of this, a fifth soldier came up, jerked me to my feet, and told me — in very poor French — to get going."

"By this time my driver had come up and was waiting for me a little way up the street. I ran and got into the taxi and he took me to the Hotel Memling (a block off the Boulevard Albert)."

EMBASSY CAUTIONS HIM

Harrell then spent several hours at the Memling recuperating from his frightening experience. He telephoned the U.S. Embassy during this time and told them what had happened. They asked him to be more careful in the future. "They seemed to think what had happened to me was about par for the course," he said.

After lunch, Harrell decided he would have another try at seeing the city. His driver took him to the African townships on the edge of the city, the zoo, the now mostly-deserted European residential areas, the Stanley monument — which is on a hill overlooking the city — and finally to the carefully guarded residence of Congo President Joseph Kasavubu. Here Harrell's luck ran out again.

The taxi drove up to the gate of the residence and stopped. Before he had time to even take his camera out of its case, the four Force Publique soldiers who were guarding the entrance came up to the car and jerked open the doors. Two of the soldiers dragged him out onto the ground while the other two did the same to the hapless taxi driver. The soldiers then proceeded to beat both of them.

"It seemed as if they must have mauled me for 20 minutes," Harrell said. "One of them kept saying in French, 'You are a white man — you are a white man — take off your glasses — we want to see the frightened eyes of a white man.' Finally six other soldiers came up and one of them helped me to my feet. I asked him if I could sit down by the side of the road as I was very dazed. This he let me do. I saw then that they were still beating my poor taxi driver. They kept yelling at him: 'You are not an African — you are a Frenchman (Brazzaville was formerly the capital of French Equatorial Africa) — just because you are black that doesn't mean you are an African.'"

TROOPS GRAB FILM

The soldiers then made Harrell take the film out of his camera and give it to them. (He had some pictures of the famed Dr. Albert Schweitzer on the roll which he had taken in Lambaré, Gabon Republic, the site of Schweitzer's jungle hospital.) They then made him empty everything out of his shirt and pants pockets. In one pocket was a traveler's check for $20 which they made him sign at gunpoint and give to them.

"They then told me to get out of there," Harrell related. "I walked a little way and then took off on a dead run. They were still beating my taxi driver the last I saw of him. I think one reason they beat him so long was because he resisted them. I didn't fight back because I knew it would only make matters worse."

EUROPEANS DRIVE UP

Harrell said that while he was being pummeled, a car full of Europeans drove up, saw what was going on, and left in a great hurry. He also stated that one Norwegian soldier and several Ghanian troops who were attached to the United Nations forces stood off a distance while he was being beaten and did nothing to stop it. He was rather bitter about this fact when he related the incident to this reporter later.

He found another taxi after leaving Kasavubu's residence and returned to the Hotel Memling. There he told some people what had happened and they told him he should contact the U.N. officials in Leopoldville. But as it was Sunday, they were very difficult to get in touch with; so he took a taxi to the port and boarded the ferry for Brazzaville.

SHAKING ALL OVER

"I didn't begin to relax until we reached the middle of the Congo River," he said. "I have never been so scared in my life. I was literally petrified. I had broken out in a cold sweat and was shaking all over. I am naturally fairly dark-complexioned, but I was as white as a sheet. I had really had enough of Leopoldville!"

Harrell was very lucky to have escaped without serious injuries. When I interviewed him about the incident on Monday morning, he was in good shape physically and had no bad bruises or cuts.

GUARD BLOWS WHISTLE

An hour and a half after Harrell had been attacked Sunday in front of Kasavubu's house, this reporter arrived at the same spot by taxi and took a picture of the residence from the car window — not knowing, of course, what had transpired earlier. One of the Congolese guards blew a whistle and motioned my driver to stop the vehicle. Two guards then came up to the car, told me it was forbidden to take pictures and demanded my film. I showed them my U.N. press card and pretended that I didn't know what they were talking about. We kept up this play-acting for 30 minutes. Finally, a Ghanian soldier arrived on the scene and between us he persuaded the Congolese soldiers that they should let both me and my film go.

I stayed in Leopoldville for three days, wandering all over the city and suburbs at will, and this was the only trouble — if it could be called that — I encountered during my entire stay.

On the surface, the city was peaceful and quiet. The hotels were operating normally and comfortably, bars and night clubs were going full swing, and I even saw — much to my astonishment — white women walking down back streets unaccompanied. The only thing that reminded me from time to time that this was Leopoldville was the two-man teams of blue-helmeted U.N. soldiers who were nonchalantly patrolling the streets at distant intervals.

I must admit they were a very reassuring sight, however, for the city was almost too peaceful and quiet — like the calm before a storm. And somehow you knew very well that if those U.N. patrols had not been there, the atmosphere would have been dangerously different.

The senator will hold a press conference at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Room of the City Auditorium. The $10-a-plate dinner will begin at 7 o'clock, and Goldwater will speak at 8:30.

Plans for the Goldwater visit were announced Thursday by J. Marvin Elliott.

Judge Re-Instructs Finch Jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The jury in the Finch-Tregoff murder trial, engrossed in its first full day of deliberation, was interrupted Thursday by Superior Court Judge Leroy Dawson.

The judge called the panel—11 housewives and one man—to the courtroom to tell them in all murder trials there is a routine instruction on "excusable homicide" which he overlooked while instructing them.

"The killing of a human being is excusable and not unlawful," he said, "when committed by accident."

Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, are being tried for the second time on charges they murdered his wife, Barbara, July 18, 1959.

The state contends they did it to keep the society physician's estranged mate from getting a big share of his wealth via a divorce settlement.

The first trial ended with a hung jury.

Deliberations in the second trial are expected to take a week or more.

The doctor says she was shot accidentally during a struggle for a gun.

U.S. Recalls Ambassador to Cuba; Break in Diplomatic Relations Likely scale invasion" within the next few days. The United States may agree to fight the issue out in the U.N. rather than ask that it be referred to the organization of American States.

Meanwhile in Norfolk, Va., Gen. David M. Shoup, Marine Corps commandant, said Thursday the Marine contingent at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, has been increased but declined to disclose the size of the boost.

Atlantic Fleet headquarters confirmed that the 200-plus Marine security force at the big U.S. Naval base has been beefed up. However, a fleet spokesman said the actual figures were not available.

Shoup added that "we have enough to do the job" at the base, which again has been spotlighted by worsening American-Cuban relations. Some observers feel Fidel Castro is preparing to create an incident involving the base in an effort to charge the United States with aggressive action.

UPI Correspondent Matthew T. Kenny said in a dispatch from Havana Thursday that, according to a diplomatic source, five Cuban air force fighter planes were painted with U.S. Air Force insignia during the weekend at an airport near the Cuban capital.

Kenny said his source presumed the planes would be used in a faked "incident" to bolster Castro's "aggression" charges.

Bonsal was scheduled to arrive in Washington "shortly." Officials said his return had been considered for several weeks and had been discussed with him in diplomatic messages. After he leaves the embassy will be run by Charge d'Affaires Daniel M. Braddock.

Wednesday's trade crackdown against Castro is expected to be followed by a Russian offer of massive new economic aid to Cuba. But there was some question as to how well the Soviets could live up to any big trade pledge.

Many State department officials feel Moscow will be both unwilling and unable to send Cuba any great quantity of consumer goods. Such items made up the bulk of U.S. exports to Cuba during the first half of this year.

These officials feel Russia could ship such items as household appliances only by making a political decision to take them away from satellite countries or underdeveloped areas of Asia and Africa which the Soviets are trying to woo.

Elks Honor Newsmen at Dinner Here

The Atlanta Elks Lodge honored members of the Atlanta press Thursday night at a dinner in the Elks Home, 736 Peachtree St. N.E., as part of the national observance of National Newspaper Week, this week.

The Atlanta lodge was one of nearly 2,000 lodges throughout the nation honoring the press during the 21st annual observance of the week.

The Elks adopted a resolution which read, in part: "We individually and collectively, do hereby express to Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., its officers and employees our sincere thanks for the service it has rendered to the citizens of the City of Atlanta and the State of Georgia, for its contributions to the preservation of one of our basic freedoms, that of having a free press and speaking for the people at all times in exposing tyranny, oppression, and corruption."

Bill Boyd, Exalted Ruler, was the principal speaker. "When the Communists moved in on Cuba," he said, "their very first step was to seize the press, thereby cutting off the people from access to the truth."

Jess Draper, chairman of the Atlanta lodge's National Newspaper Week Committee, was in charge of the local arrangements.

Casino Witnesses Ordered to Court

Two Henry County grand jury witnesses Thursday were ordered to "show cause" why they should not be held in contempt of court for refusing to answer questions about an alleged gambling casino.

The witnesses, Mrs. Ida Stanley of Atlanta and Rapley C. Green, a Decatur businessman, were ordered to appear before Flint Circuit Judge Thomas J. Brown Jr. in Henry Superior Court in McDonough at 10 a.m. Oct. 27.

Judge Brown signed the contempt citation after the grand jury filed a written report declaring that both witnesses had refused to answer questions material to the case of the State vs.

Frank Worley, a proposed indictment charging "the keeping and maintaining of a gambling house."

PROBE CONTINUING

Sol. Gen. Hugh Sosebee said the jury is continuing its investigation, but has recessed until 10 a.m. Oct. 27.

"If Judge Brown orders the witnesses to testify, the jury will be available to hear them immediately," Sosebee said.

The alleged gambling casino, a farm house located on Lake Amalee Road just off the South Expressway near Hampton, was raided by Sosebee on Sept. 17. No one was arrested, but officers seized a dice table and roulette wheel stand.

JURY ASKS CITATION

The grand jury's report requesting the contempt citation disclosed that both witnesses had refused to answer questions as to whether they had ever seen roulette wheels, dice games or other gambling in the house.

The report charged that Green also refused to say whether he was served free food or "how many chips" he bought.

The jury reported Green also refused to answer whether he had previously told Sol. Gen. Sosebee "that he had been to the place the night before the place was raided, remained there about three hours, playing a dice game and lost $50 and was served free food and that he went with another person to said place."

Mother Finds Boy, 16, Shot to Death Here

A 16-year-old North Fulton High School student Thursday was fatally shot while his mother, in another room, was preparing a dish of ice cream for him, police said.

Milton Knox Walton, 16, of 2108

Arlington Ave., N.E., died after being admitted to a private hospital with a bullet wound in the head. Detectives J. F. Inman and L. N. Bradley said.

Detectives said the youth came home from school and went into his bedroom. They said his mother, Mrs. Milton Walton, was preparing a dish of ice cream when she heard a shot.

A .38-caliber pistol was found beside the chair in which the youth was sitting.

Young Milton moved to Atlanta with his parents several months ago from Rome, where he was a member of North Rome Methodist Church.

Survivors also include the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ethel

J. Walton, Atlanta, and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Wedowee, Ala.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Talmadge Asks Broiler Buying To Feed Pupils

Consolidation Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sen. Herman Talmadge and three of his Democratic colleagues have called on Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson to undertake a broiler purchase program for school lunches to boost the sagging poultry industry.

Senators Stuart Symington of Missouri, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, joined Talmadge in sending a telegram to Benson requesting such action.

William B. Harrison, who has worked on it since 1956.

CHANCELLOR SPEAKS

In a speech prior to the award ceremony, Chancellor Harmon W. Caldwell of the Georgia University System, said:

"The predictable future for applications of nuclear energy already is so large in scope as to strain the imagination."

"The design of the reactor has been influenced by the needs of the entire region. . . . A cooperative use of the center will provide for the needs of schools throughout the university system."

REGION TO BENEFIT

"It will stimulate and coordinate educational and research programs throughout the region. No other facility will bind together so many different conventional fields of endeavor as the research reactor."

Ex-Gov. Marvin Griffin's administration allocated $2,500,000 toward the center in 1957. The National Science Foundation donated $750,000. The Atomic Energy Commission will furnish water and uranium fuel valued at $500,000.

The facility is expected to be completed in 1962.

Benson to Lose Job, Talmadge Predicts

Speaks at Groundbreaking For Huge Cedar Springs Mill

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Constitution Business Editor

CEDAR SPRINGS—Some 5,000 persons gathered deep in the backwoods of southwest Georgia Thursday and heard Sen. Talmadge deliver blistering denunciations of Benson farm policies, party platform civil right planks, integration and increasing federal power.

Attending ground-breaking ceremonies for a $42,000,000 paper mill to employ 450 persons here in Early County, the crowd also heard for the first time that a related industry is planning to build a nearby plant that would employ another 200 persons.

Eustace Bishop, president of the Tri-Rivers Development Assn., a group composed of southwest Georgians, southeast Alabamians and northwest Floridians, said in introducing guests that one of them represents a Mississippi company which intends to build a converting plant on adjacent property to use some of the kraft liner board that will be produced when the Southern Land, Timber & Pulp Corp. paper mill goes into operation in about two years.

Thursday's ground-breaking ceremony came less than three weeks before Early County voters will go to the polls to vote on a $50,000,000 issue of revenue bonds necessary to going ahead with construction of the paper mill.

It was a holiday occasion with welcome banners and signs evident throughout nearby Blakely where schools, government offices and many businesses were closed for the day.

"Come next January," Talmadge said, "we are going to send Mr. Benson back to Utah. He has already sold his home in Washington and bought another in Utah. Benson can't get Nixon on the telephone, and Nixon won't answer his letters."

"I can promise you that he'll be going back to Utah, regardless of who wins the election. Even his own party won't have anything to do with him."

Talmadge reiterated his declaration that Benson, during the past eight years, has spent more money on farm programs than all other secretaries of agriculture combined in the nation's history.

"I hope that in the next session of Congress we will pass a bill like I proposed in the 85th Congress," a bill that Talmadge said "would (1), let farmers farm; (2), give them a fair share of the national income and (3) put our farm products back on the world market."

College Park Man Stricken On Trolley, Dies

A College Park resident died Thursday after apparently suffering a stroke while on a trolley in Atlanta, police said.

Thurmond Ridings, 47, of Horton Drive, College Park, was removed from the trolley at Techwood Drive and Alexander Street, Northwest.

Patrolman C. O. Anderson said Mr. Ridings was pronounced dead upon arrival at Grady Hospital and death was believed due to a stroke.

Sandy Springs Gets 10-Yr. Growth Plan

A 10-year development program for Sandy Springs that calls for a north Fulton expressway, new or widened roads, sidewalks and a community park was outlined Thursday night by a staff member of the Atlanta-Fulton County Joint Planning Board.

Burton Sparer, addressing the Sandy Springs Businessmen's Association, said adoption of such a community plan would keep Sandy Springs from following the course of Buckhead, currently fighting to break the stranglehold of poor traffic circulation and lack of parking.

POPULATION COULD DOUBLE
Sparer said Sandy Springs population has increased from 4,000 in 1950 to 15,000 today. He said the area's population could double within the next 10 years.

"We are trying to make sure that growth is orderly while preserving the charm that makes Sandy Springs such a popular place to live," he added.

Main features of the plan are proposals to revitalize the Roswell Road business center and restrict its spread in a strip; new roads including a north Fulton expressway that would parallel Peachtree-Dunwoody Road, and a 35-to-40 acre park immediately southwest of the main Sandy Springs shopping area.

NOT TOO LATE
Earl J. Smith, planning board member, told the group, "It's still not too late to make this a well-planned community because it isn't fully developed yet. Let's not get in a position of someday having to look back with regret that we didn't do our planning before we did our building."

F. W. (Buddy) Griffin was elected president of the businessmen's association, succeeding Bill Smith. Other officers elected were Robert Nee, vice president, Philip Mitchell, secretary, and David Baker, treasurer.

Recession On, Tariff Chief Says

"We are now, and for some months have been, in a recession," U.S. Tariff Commissioner Glenn Sutton said here Thursday night.

In a speech at the annual meeting of the Atlanta Better Business Bureau, he compared the U. S. economic front with a patient whose ingrown toenail has been cured but whose cancer has grown worse.

"There are many ways of looking at it," he said, "but I'd be less than candid if I didn't tell you the truth."

JOBLESS STAND OUT

Sutton, former director of the Savannah division of the University of Georgia, said unemployment is the most serious aspect of the deepening recession.

And there is a hangover from past recessions, he said.

"After recovery from the 1948-49 recession we had an unemployment ratio of only three per cent," he said.

RATIOS COMPARED

"After the 1933-34 recovery we had a four per cent ratio. After the 1957-58 recession, we had a five per cent unemployment ratio, and we haven't been able to get it below that since that time."

Sutton also outlined in detail the history and function of the U.S. Tariff Commission.

The Better Business Bureau elected Grady A. Lee as its 1960-61 president. Lee is manager of Sterchi Brothers Stores Inc. and past president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants Assn. Other officers: Henry A. Maddox, Aetna Life Insurance Co., first vice president; Hollis E. Morris, Fulton Federal and Loan Association, second vice president, and William A. White Jr., Fulton National Bank, secretary-treasurer.

Use of Cobb Equipment By Contractor Admitted

By JACK NELSON

A private road contractor has been using county paving equipment, Cobb County Commissioner Herbert C. McCollum has acknowledged, but he declined to permit a reporter to inspect public records in his office.

"I'm not letting you see anything," McCollum told the reporter. "Get a court order if you want to see it that bad."

McCollum had been questioned about whether C. W. Matthews Construction Co. had been using any of Cobb County's equipment.

The Constitution has an affidavit swearing the affiant has seen the concern using an asphalt tank-trailer with the lettering "Cobb County" on the side of it. A Constitution photographer recently made a picture of the tank-trailer parked on the construction firm's parking lot.

McCollum said the company has been allowed to use the county's tank-trailer and "an old distributor."

"When does the company use the equipment?," he was asked. "When they need it," McCollum said.

The commissioner said the county "lends" the equipment to C. W. Matthews Construction Co.

Then he said the county "rents" the equipment to the company.

Could he show any records where the company had paid rent to the county?

"That would be hard to do," McCollum said.

At this point the commissioner demanded to know who had given the reporter information about the equipment.

When told this was "confidential," McCollum declared:

"Well, this is confidential, too. I don't have anything to say to you."

Asked if he would allow the reporter to look over county disbursement records, McCollum said:

"I'm not letting you see anything."

He said he was "tired of this digging around" by The Atlanta Constitution. He said the newspaper was only interested in printing scandal about Cobb County.

C. W. Matthews of the construction firm was asked about the arrangement under which the firm has used the equipment.

"When we use it, we pay rent," Matthews said. "But I don't ever recall ever using that asphalt distributor. The county had a tanker parked in our yard, but I don't recall ever using it. Possibly we have."

McCollum had told The Constitution that Matthews has been doing all the county's paving because he submitted the low bid on paving projects financed by the million-dollar bond issue.

The commissioner said there were two other bidders and Matthews was "low by just a few cents." The other bidders he identified by McIntosh and Leggett.

Okinawa's Hamby Airfield Named For Atlantan's War Hero Brother

The Army's air facility on Okinawa has been named Hamby Army Airfield in honor of an Atlanta woman's brother, who died in World War II.

Lt. William Hamby of Greenwood, S.C., was killed May 22, 1945, in action near Okinawa. His sister, Miss Mary E. Hamby, lives at 740 Greenwood Ave., N.E.

Harris to Meet Here to Push Elector Plan

AUGUSTA (UPI)—Politician Roy Harris said Thursday he plans to meet in Atlanta Friday with other Democratic leaders to continue his campaign for unpledged electors.

Harris refused to say with whom he would meet.

The Augusta attorney spoke in Selma, Ala., Thursday night on behalf of Alabama's six unpledged Democratic electors who were nominated in a party primary in which five others were named who were pledged to the Kennedy-Johnson ticket.

DeKalb Seeks to Jail Rev. King

DeKalb County authorities sought Thursday to force the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. to serve a year in prison on grounds that his arrest Wednesday violated terms of a suspended sentence he got last month.

King, who was arrested along with other Negro lunchroom demonstrators in Atlanta Wednesday, was served by DeKalb deputies Thursday with an order to show cause at 11 a.m. Oct. 25 why the suspended sentence should not be revoked.

The order was signed by Judge Oscar Mitchell of DeKalb Civil and Criminal Court, who last month fined King $25 and imposed the suspended sentence on him for driving without a Georgia driver's license.

King pleaded guilty to the charge.

One of the conditions for the suspension of the sentence was that King not again violate the law in any respect.

The Negro minister was arrested Wednesday on a charge of violating Georgia's 1960 anti-trespassing law when he allegedly refused to leave a department store lunchroom when he had been refused service.

26 Arrested Here in New Sit-Ins

its dining rooms open Wednesday, closed them all Thursday "until further notice," including the Hunter Room for Negroes. Davidson's closed counters both days.

Sit-ins Thursday were also staged or attempted at Newberry's, S. H. Kress, McCrory's, Grant's, two H. L. Green stores, two Woolworth's, two Walgreens, three Lane's and the Terminal Station.

Estimates of the number of students participating in Thursday's demonstrations ranged from several hundred to 2,000. It was, by consensus, considerably more than on Wednesday.

(Atlanta University officials were not available to say what their policy toward those cutting class and being arrested would be.)

There was no indication how long the sit-ins and picketing would continue. Although more students participated Thursday, they showed a greater reluctance to be arrested.

SEATS ROPED OFF

Several times during the day, given the opportunity to leave drug stores or be arrested, the students retreated.

In the Lane Drug Store at Broad and Alabama, seats were roped off. Every time Negroes appeared, a clerk dashed to pull up the rope and waitresses began removing seats of unoccupied stools. Police would appear, the Negroes would leave. Down would go the rope and back would go the stool seats.

Meanwhile, Fulton Criminal Court Solicitor John L. Kelley said it would apparently be four to six weeks before the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and the other Negroes arrested in the demonstrations come to trial. All are in jail after refusing to post $500 bonds.

A Negro detective, J. D. Hudson, assisted three white officers in making 25 arrests at the Union News lunch room in Terminal Station.

Detectives J. C. McEntire and W. B. Blackwell said they arrived at the station, found the lunch room closed and three Negroes seated at the counter. They said the manager of the lunch room asked the three to leave, they refused and were taken into custody.

The three, ordered held under the anti-trespass law, were Lenora Taitt, 21, and Bertha Singleton, 21, of 350 Leonard St., and Melvin Tolbert, of Clinton, La.

39 UNDER CHARGES

Court records showed that Lenora Taitt and Bertha Singleton were among a group of 16 against whom charges of violating the anti-trespass laws were dismissed Wednesday.

The three ordered held increased to 39 the number under charges at Fulton Tower on the trespass law. The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., said Wednesday, he would make no attempt to post the bond. Officers said Thursday none of the group had posted bond.

While Blackwell and McEntire were inside at the Terminal Station, Capt. R. E. Little and Hudson said they arrived and found a large group outside the closed doors, blocking the entrance.

Hudson said he asked the Rev.

A. D. King and each of the others present individually to move on and when they refused brought charges.

Cross-examined by Attorney D. L. Hollowell, Hudson said each of the 22 persons told him they were attempting to be served food.

In handing out the 10-day jail sentences, Webb noted that several persons in the group were among those freed of charges Wednesday and added:

KING SPEAKS OUT

"You always seem to have a spokesman. I think you would be better off if you listened to your parents back home and thought as individuals. Our ordinances were designed to keep this a peaceful city."

The Rev. A. D. King served as spokesman for the group as his brother had done the previous day. He said he entered the restaurant with three others, was shoved out and the door slammed on him.

In addition to King, those given prison farm sentences were Norma Wilson, 20, of 350 Leonard St.; Amos C. Brown, 19, Jackson, Miss.; Solomon Taylor, 21, of 1308 Church Dr.; Roland L. Turpin, Richmond, Va.; Ralph D. Moore, Washington, D.C.

Murder Hinted in Fire Death recognition. In the station wagon was an empty 5-gallon gas can.

One source told The Constitution that the autopsy showed the body's jaw had been broken.

Dr. Herman Jones, director of the State Crime Laboratory, who was in charge of the autopsy, was not available for comment.

"Hunters found the teeth and other things in a wooded area about 50 yards off a dirt road," Gaston said. "Somebody had tried to burn them, but they were in the ashes."

OBJECTS IDENTIFIED

He identified the objects as:

Six or eight teeth; a bloody, charred shirt bearing the initials A. H. S., with the initials D. G. M. showing under ultra-violet light; a tie; a tie clip; an Atlanta trolley transfer; a piece of paper with an Atlanta telephone number written on it, and a 14-karat gold man's wedding band.

Gaston said Mrs. Austin first identified the wedding band as one belonging to her husband, but later said she was not sure.

SEVERAL SAW CAR

Several persons reported seeing Austin's station wagon on dirt roads in the vicinity of where the articles were found on the day of the fire, according to Gaston. "Some said they saw only one person in it, but others said two," he reported.

The Atlanta telephone number proved to be a pay station at a Hurt Street barber shop.

The trolley transfer was dated Sept. 28 and was to the Perry Homes.

The operator of a service station near where the station wagon burned told investigators he sold $1.50 worth of gas to a man who put it in a five-gallon can. The sale reportedly was made about an hour before the burning.

BACKER CALLS ON VICE PRESIDENT AT HOTEL
Adm. Arthur W. Radford Chats With Nixon

Radford Meets Nixon, Rips Kennedy on Islands

his fourth television debate with Kennedy Friday night.

"If Mr. Kennedy is elected I'm afraid the Chinese Communists would take advantage of his position and try us out and see if we would fight," Radford said in the statement.

Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said the Democratic nominee would have no comment on Radford's statements pending full study.

Radford, chairman of Retired Servicemen for Nixon, a campaign organization, said that Kennedy has "injected" the Quemoy-Matsu issue into the presidential campaign and given the Communists "reason to believe he will not defend the islands."

In answer to newsmen's questions Radford said that Kennedy's "basic position" might lead the nation into war in the Pacific.

Kennedy "still believes that Quemoy and Matsu are indefensible and apparently he still believes that we should take steps to persuade our Chinese Nationalist allies to evacuate them," Radford's statement said.

The admiral said he thought the Eisenhower administration policy is "correct" on Quemoy and Matsu and that it is not necessary specifically to include them in the treaty by which the United States is pledged to defend Formosa and the Pescadores.

In his news conference, Radford said that Kennedy had given encouragement to the Chinese Communists.

"The Communists are very literal people," he said. "If they think there is weakness on the other side they will probe it."

"They didn't think we would fight over Korea, because we gave the impression we would not."

Radford said that "while Mr. Kennedy insists that he supports the administration position, his original statement was, in my opinion, an invitation to attack Quemoy and Matsu, and as such a grave foreign policy error."

Nixon Proposes Revisions in Taxes

a totally stupid and in my opinion unnecessary gold crisis which could "have disastrous consequences not only for America but for the entire free world."

He declared that those who loudly demand very easy credit and artificially low interest rates, at all times and under all circumstances, are practically inviting foreign banks and investors to pull out the billions of dollars that they now hold here on deposit or in short-term paper."

FEDERAL RESERVE

The Vice President's economic program called for maintaining the independence of the Federal Reserve System, which he contended was threatened by Kennedy's economic program.

"The crucial question here," Nixon said, "is not one of 'tight money' versus 'easy money' or of high interest rates versus low interest rates but whether monetary and credit conditions are such as to maintain prosperity and growth."

Nixon did not spell out his tax proposals. He indicated their direction, however, by calling for reforms "to enhance personal incentives and speed the investment in new plants and equipment that makes jobs and spurs productivity."

"NOW OBSOLETE"

"Taxes designed in an earlier time, and still in the law, to punish success are now obsolete; they hobble the economy's advance," he declared.

"A tax system moving toward some revision in personal and corporate rates, reform in depreciation allowances, a broader base for excises at a rate well below those now in effect, and protection of state and municipal revenues—those and other changes would contribute substantially to a better environment for economic growth."

Nixon proposed that a national economic council be set up to advise the President on economic matters, just as the National Security Council now advises him on defense matters.

Nixon called for a mobilization of human resources, particularly by creating greater opportunities for Negroes and other minorities.

He urged the next Congress to set up a national science foundation to sponsor major new fields of basic research in cooperation with universities. He asked for a national program of college scholarships and other educational aids for students.

In order to stimulate metropolitan centers, "as impulse-centers and not choke-points" for economic growth, Nixon suggested a long-range plan of land use and planned transportation to be

Elliott several times after his escape Oct. 13 from the Colony Prison Farm at Milledgeville, detectives related. They said he told them he had found Mrs. Elliott was seeing another man and had not lived up to her promises in the letters.

Peppers said he entered an apartment at 694 Washington St., SW, Wednesday by the back stairway and soon thereafter Mrs. Elliott came in the front door, went into a bedroom and started combing her hair.

"We got to arguing about this man she was seeing," he was quoted. "I stabbed her . . . I don't know, four or five times . . . and she fell to the floor and began to holler 'Help me, Eddy, help me!'"

"Then I just stood there and watched her until the policeman came. I give him the knife and while he was trying to do something for her I slipped out the back door."

"All I hate about it is that I got myself in a lot of trouble."

Kennedy Asks Help for Cuban Rebels

1959 growth as 6.9 per cent, surpassing the Europeans.

Power: Both Soviet and U.S. electricity production would be 1,550 billion kilowatt hours in 1975, according to 1960 estimates. Nixon had cited a 1980 Soviet forecast of 900 billion kilowatt hours.

Food: The Kennedy farm program would little affect food prices for the farmer gets only 2.3 cents for the wheat in a 20-cent loaf of bread.

Education: Republican majorities in both House and Senate opposed this year's bill to aid education.

Defense: Congress "appropriated" $260,000,000 more for defense than President Eisenhower had requested since 1953.

Health: Congress had appropriated $210,000,000 more for hospital construction in three years than the Republicans requested and has boosted medical research $433,000,000 "over Republican opposition."

Civil rights: "Each advance toward equality of opportunity for all Americans made during the past seven and one-half years has been due to Democratic initiative."

Housing: "All our basic housing programs have been enacted by the Democratic Congresses working with Democratic presidents," and these were largely responsible for the building of 10,000,000 private homes and for 24,000,000 home improvements.

NEVER RETREAT

Quemoy-Matsu: "I would never retreat from Quemoy or Matsu under fire." He asserted that he had maintained throughout a position consistent with that of the Eisenhower administration to defend the islands if necessary to halt an attack on Formosa and the Pescadores, while Nixon had "retreated" from a pledge to defend them regardless.

Minimum wages: Republican majorities in the House and Senate voted against the proposal for a $1.25 hourly minimum wage this year.

Care for aged: The administration "opposed any action upon health care" until the closing months of the last Congress.

Voice of America: "Regular Spanish-language Voice of America broadcasts to South America" were generally suspended from 1953 until resumed in 1959.

FARM PROGRAM

Pierre Salinger, the senator's press secretary, later reported that Kennedy economists estimated the cost of the Democratic nominee's farm program at $5,500,000,000 a year. He said they estimated the Nixon plan at $8,200,000,000 a year, and present costs at $6,200,000,000.

Thursday night Kennedy drove through Brooklyn in a motorcade that set off an ovation from shoppers' crowds. Traffic was blocked by throngs estimated at 10,000 persons, mostly women, many screaming and trying to reach the candidate.

3 Pacifists Shoved Off Subs by Hoses

(Copyright 1960 by The New York Times Co.)

GROTON, Conn.—Three pacifists of a group of 12 succeeded Thursday afternoon in boarding two Polaris-equipped atomic submarines. They managed to stay on board for a few minutes before being pushed into the Thames River by the force of water from hoses turned on them by sailors.

The group crossed the river from New London to Groton in two rowboats, an outboard motor boat and a canoe. Bradford Lytle, secretary of the pacifist group, the Committee for Non-Violent Action, said that halfway across a Navy tug tried to swamp the small flotilla.

The boats managed, however, to get to the atomic submarines Patrick Henry and the George Washington, which were docked in the Thames River section of the electric boat division of the General Dynamics Corporation.

One of the pacifists scrambled onto the fin of the George Washington while two others climbed onto the afterdeck of the Patrick Henry.

Sailors on board the Navy tug brought the hoses into play and the strong barrage of water swept the pacifists into the river.

Lytle said his group was opposed to "war, military power and preparation of war by the Communists and the Western powers." He said his group uses "non-violent resistance to dramatize the dangers of the arms race and to build a peace movement."

U.S. Stems Rocketing Gold Prices

LONDON (UP)—A gold rush developed on the London market Thursday and the price of the precious metal soared to $41 an ounce until the world's biggest owner, the United States, knocked the price down again.

An official announcement by the United States that it will continue to peg the price of gold at $35 an ounce, brought on a wave of profit-taking on the market and forced the price down to $38. Speculators were responsible for much of the sudden rise in the normally placid gold market.

The gold fever was infectious. Gold stocks rose on the New York Stock Exchange with virtually every gold mining issue affected. Heavy dealings were reported in Canada and other international markets, in a chain reaction to the surge of buying and selling in London.

Bullion brokers in London opened the market Thursday morning with gold selling at $36.55 per troy ounce.

A sudden rush of buying sent the price up to $40. A late wave pushed it up another dollar to $41.

With the yellow metal in short supply in private markets, dealers sought to cope with a flurry of orders to buy.

They described the rush to buy in the gold market, where prices usually vary only minutely, as "phenomenal, fantastic."

Britons could only watch. Like Americans, they cannot buy or hold gold bullion.

The surge of buying was sparked by clients of Swiss banks, acting on the advice of brokers to buy gold and avoid paying the commission Switzerland charges on foreign currency held in Swiss banks.

Other continental trading centers, which permit the buying and holding of gold, then joined the scramble, forcing up the market price.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Many Added Years Of Life Foreseen

ATHENS—Americans of the future are going to live much longer, be more active, and enjoy better health, the director of the National Heart Institute predicted here Thursday.

Dr. James Watt, speaking to the Georgia Gerontology Society meeting at the University of Georgia, said that we have every reason to expect that not only will the life span be greatly extended but that a person's productive years will be so increased that he can confidently look forward to two careers instead of one.

In the future, he said, life may well be divided into a learning period and a "doing" period followed by an active retirement which may well include a second career. The added years won't be decrepit ones in which a person dies by bits and pieces, but active ones in which he may make a real contribution to society, he said.

Insuring a long, healthy old age begins with better health care in childhood, Dr. Watt explained. Man lives longer today because of the tremendous advances made in community health programs which prevent many of the diseases which used to strike children and young adults.

Diseases do leave scars, Dr. Watt added. Absence of disease in childhood means that a person in later years will have a system different from those where diseases have had their toll.

Ordinary health programs now widely praised for their benefits to the young will also prove a boon to old age, he pointed out. Fluoridation of water, for example, which prevents decay of teeth in the young, will enable people to keep their own teeth longer, he said.

South's Police Hunt For $13,750 Bandit

SAVANNAH — A southwide search was under way Thursday for a stocking-mask bandit believed to have escaped in a 1959 Edsel automobile after taking $13,750 in a holdup at the Garden City branch of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association Wednesday. The escape car is believed by police to be one stolen from I. T. Shearouse of Savannah. It bears Georgia license plate number 2-J-9047.

Local Races Law Asked By Fortson

Favors 5 Pct. On Petitions

Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson Jr. said Thursday that he and "many members of the General Assembly" believe that Georgia's five per cent voter petition law should be changed to include local races.

Fortson said he has conferred with many legislators since the issue came up during the current election campaigns. "All of them agree that something must be done to spell out definitely that the five per cent law shall apply to local as well as national contests."

The law provides that candidates for state or congressional office who have not been nominated in primaries must present a petition signed by at least five per cent of the voters to get on the general election ballot.

However, the courts have ruled that the law does not apply to county candidates. Several, including some who were defeated in the September Democratic primary, are running as independents on the ballot.

Fortson, who was a member of the legislature when the five per cent law was adopted in 1943, said "it was the intent for it to cover just what is coming up now but it has been ruled that it doesn't."

Tax Worker, Fired in '58, Rehired Here

A Fulton County tax accountant who was fired two years ago, but won his job back through the courts, was ordered reinstated Wednesday by Tax Commissioner Standish Thompson.

Reno C. Dunn, former chief accountant who was fired Aug. 7, 1958, after he was accused of failing to follow security measures, was notified Thursday he was reinstated "effective immediately."

OFFICE REORGANIZED

However, Dunn also was notified that because of a reorganization of the tax office since his dismissal, there are no duties assigned to a chief accountant under the present organization. Dunn was advised that he would be assigned temporary duties consistent with the office of chief accountant until a final disposition of the matter can be made.

Reinstatement of Dunn also means he is eligible for back pay due him since the date of his dismissal. With interest this amounts to more than $14,000.

ONE LATER REHIRED

Thompson dismissed Dunn and two other accountants after a $3,000 shortage was found. The tax commissioner contended they had not followed required security measures. One of the accountants was later rehired.

Dunn appealed to the Fulton Civil Service Board on the grounds that his dismissal was for "personal and political reasons." The board upheld him, and so did the Fulton Superior Court and the State Court of Appeals. The State Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Appeals Judge, Road Panelist Get Oath Oct. 31

Gov. Vandiver will give the oath of office to a new Court of Appeals Judge and a State Highway Board member in ceremonies scheduled for Oct. 31.

He will swear in Robert H. Jordan of Talbotton as judge and Clarke W. (Sonny) Duncan of Buena Vista as the new road board member.

Duncan replaces Jordan on the board. Gov. Vandiver named Jordan to the appeals court to fill the post left vacant by the resignation of Judge B. C. Gardner.

Indians Kill 4 In Paraguay

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI)—Thirty Indians attacked a jungle working party with bows and arrows Tuesday and killed four of its members, it was reported Thursday.

The Indians escaped into the jungle after the attack, which took place on the Paraguay River 400 miles north of here. The party was gathering Quebracho, a raw material for guanine. Oil prospectors and army posts have been hit by the Indian attacks in the past.

Redeveloped Power Dam Hailed as Saving to City

The $910,000 Morgan Falls Dam redevelopment project was officially completed Thursday as about 100 persons visited the project 12 miles north of Atlanta.

The Joint City of Atlanta and Georgia Power Co. project, which started 13 months ago, added 16 new gates to the dam to increase the dam's height six feet and regulate the river flow.

Speaking during ceremonies at the dam, Mayor William B. Hartsfield termed the project a "splendid monument to free enterprise and a city working together."

He said, "Had we not been able to perform this project with the power company, the City of Atlanta would have had to build secondary facilities for sewage treatment at a cost of $5,500,000. Then an additional $210,000 would have been necessary each year to operate the secondary facility."

Mayor Hartsfield also announced that Georgia Power Co. has donated $4,000 to Atlanta toward the construction of an observation tower at Grant Park. The $4,000 will be used to make up the difference between the funds available for the tower and the bid for construction of it.

The increased storage capacity will provide adequate water for Atlanta sewage treatment for the next 15 to 20 years. Water from the dam is used at the Clayton Sewage Treatment Plant.

The project also increased electric power production at Morgan Falls Dam by 13 per cent. Water from this reservoir also will be used to supplement Atlanta's water supply.

Morgan Falls Dam is about 12 miles north of Atlanta. It is owned and operated by the Georgia Power Co.

'Go Get It,' Chairman Lane Tells Appeal Volunteers

United Appeal volunteers, with just seven days left to reach a $3,604,640 goal, heard a terse order Thursday from campaign chairman Mills B. Lane Jr.:

"It's a wonderful world—go get it!"

Dollars, dimes, and "big money" checks piled up gifts to date to $2,142,282 or 59.2 per cent of the total needed for the 76-agency Community Chest, Red Cross, and the Cerebral Palsy Center.

Workers Thursday applauded their current "top man," Charles E. Thwaite Jr., chairman of the state-local division, which reported 84.8 per cent of its individual goal.

Other divisions and percentages at the Thursday noon report luncheon: commerce, industry and finance, 60.3; special gifts, 84 per cent; office buildings, 41.6 per cent; central Atlanta, 42.8 per cent; business, 29.5 per cent; residential, 17.1 per cent; educational, 76.7 per cent; legal, 52.7 per cent; medical, 34.3 per cent; armed services, 23.3 per cent; federal, 75.3 per cent; Negro, 53.1 per cent.

SEAMS TO ME

Pleated Skirts, Now Popular, Call for Expert Zipper Job

Since knife-pleated skirts are so popular this year, I will give some pointers on how to apply zippers on them. First, here are some tips on how to care for all zippers.

1) Before laundering or dry cleaning, always close zipper; 2) to avoid the impression of the teeth showing on the placket when pressing, place placket on a turkish towel or tailor's ham and press from inside the garment. If pressing from the outside, place a piece of blotter or cardboard between zipper teeth and placket fold; place cloth over placket and press; 3) always close the zipper before hanging up a garment. This prevents sagging and stretching.

The zipper in a knife-pleated skirt is inserted in the seam that joins the two ends of the pleated fabric and the seam must be prepared with this in mind. It may be placed at center back or on left side of skirt.

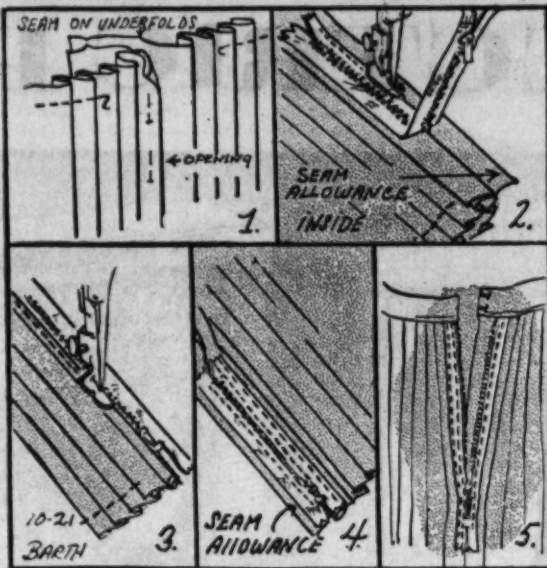

Figure 1: To secure the pleats at top of skirt, baste across pleats, leaving 3 pleats free at each end. Working on the right side of skirt open out the end-pleat on each side. Bring the first pleat on one side over the other side, as illustrated, so that underfolds are matched and pleats have a continuous appearance. Pin this pleat, as in diagram, all the way down. On the inside, baste together all the way down the underfolds you have matched.

Stitch seam along basted line from bottom of skirt to where zipper will start, and leave the opening basted. Press out creases in seam allowance; press seam open with tip of iron, so as not to disturb pleats; teeth. As you stitch, check to see if zipper teeth are in correct position by lifting zipper every 2 or 3 inches.

trim seam allowances to one inch.

Figure 2: Set skirt on machine with bulk of fabric to the left, allowing a single seam allowance to extend as illustrated. Place zipper on, face down, full width of zipper teeth on seam allowance and edge of teeth right against the basted line. Stitch, using regular presser foot, and edge of foot against right side up, folding seam allowance close to zipper teeth. Top stitch along fold the full length of zipper tape, as illustrated.

Figure 4: Now, set skirt on machine with bulk of fabric on the right. Bring zipper face down over other seam allowance, forming a pleat at the placket end as shown. Starting at seamlane, stitch across tapes at bottom. Turn, pivoting on needle, and stitch along zipper close to the teeth. Be sure that tape-ends lie straight at top.

Though the above instructions tell how to apply a zipper by machine, the same principles are used when sewing on by hand. Just follow the directions and sew by hand, using a tiny back stitch.

I write them myself. Now work that out.

Symphony Week Prelude

The beginning of Symphony Week, the prelude to the 1960-61 concert season, was marked by the first big meeting of the Women's Committee of the Atlanta Symphony Guild at the

Nixon Is Honor Guest by Proxy At Thirty Republican Coffees

By BETTY CARROLLTON

Vice President Richard M. Nixon was guest of honor at some 30 different functions in Atlanta this week.

The Republican presidential candidate was honor guest by proxy, but the spirited sessions staged by Georgia GOP women spotlighted an all-out effort worthy of Mr. Nixon's stamp of approval.

A bi-partisan observer wandering in at several of the "Coffees for Nixon" held by Republican women in DeKalb and Fulton counties this week heard casual chatter about children, schools and forthcoming social events. But such topics were merely "ice breakers" before turning attention to what — at least temporarily — heads the agenda in every community: Getting the votes Nov. 8.

GIANT STRIDES

Guests at the "Coffees for Nixon" report "giant strides" in their personal political education. They pointed to the qualified guest speakers at some of the functions to underline their case.

Among the speakers were Mrs. Nan Pendergast of Atlanta. Mother of seven children, she has added handling public relations for the Fulton County Republican Party to her list of chores. Well-schooled in Party progress, Mrs. Pendergast declared she has "a sort of photographic memory" that enables her to rattle off certain points in behalf of her candidates.

At the coffee hosted by Mrs. Robert Snodgrass, Mrs. Pendergast touched on numerous points:

EIGHT-YEAR RECORD

"During the past eight years, we've made greater strides in the field of erasing second-class citizenship than in all the 90 years preceding. . . . The Eisenhower administration has led the way in liberalizing immigration laws, and has succeeded in cutting the waiting period for citizenship from 18 months to 45 days. . . . Under this administration, social security benefits have been extended to cover 12 million more people; the department of Health, Education and Welfare was established. And during the two years when we had a Republican administration and a Republican Congress, the nation rejoiced in the largest single tax cut in its history — $4 million dollars."

Such set the pace for the coffee klatches in what has been a busy time for GOP women.

TELEPHONE SURVEY

DeKalb County Republican Headquarters has announced the results of a two-week telephone survey of more than 7,000 citizens in the area. The survey was conducted "at home" by GOP women in the county, under the leadership of Mrs. Judy Cutson.

"Most of the women who made the calls," report Mrs. Cutson, "have been surprised at the great number of eligible citizens who are not registered to vote."

She said that of the 7,314 contacted, only 4,622 reported they are registered to vote.

The survey included five questions: "Do you want a two-party system in Georgia?" "Are you registered to vote?" "Have you decided which candidate you are going to vote for and do you mind saying who?" and "Would you be interested in helping the DeKalb Republicans in any way?"

Reporting survey results, Mrs. Cutson pointed out that only those registered were asked to tell for whom they would vote.

SURVEY RESULTS

Vice President Nixon scored 1,383 and Sen. Kennedy clocked in with 1,317 pledges from those called. A total of 1,922 of the 7,314 either "hadn't decided" or "just wouldn't say."

"A large majority of the registered voters," she continued, "favored a two-party system. 'But one out of five people contacted did not seem to know what the term 'two-party system' means."

Promised Berlin Crisis Forces Army to Remove Dependents

WEST BERLIN (WNS)—The United States Army is acting to reduce the number of wives, children and in-laws attached to its Berlin garrison.

The U.S. military is preparing for the big storm Nikita Khrushchev is promising for this Iron Curtain outpost after the U.S. Presidential elections.

Senator John F. Kennedy, in his second TV debate with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, predicted a Berlin crisis after the Presidential ballot. The military definitely agrees with Kennedy.

From the Army's viewpoint, the trouble with wives is that they tend to increase.

It is Army policy to keep families together if the husband has enough rank or noncommissioned grade, and if his tour is long enough to impose hardship when the family is separated.

The U.S. Army has around 6,000 fighting men in Berlin (the exact number is classified) and some 4,000 dependent wives, children, parents and parents-in-law.

This latter item is not negligible. It is estimated that the American mother-in-law strength in West Berlin is 550.

The Army values the presence of dependents in West Berlin—within reasonable limits. The wives and children are a "show the flag" soothing agent, West Berliners being reassured by their presence that the U.S. is confident of its ability to preserve the city's freedom.

Families, within reasonable numbers help maintain morale of the U.S. garrison. But commanders complain the dependent "strength" has waxed to the point where it impairs military efficiency.

Some military dependent experts contend that between 500 and 1,000 American women and children are sufficient in Berlin to "show the flag."

In Europe there are almost as many dependents as fighting men: 205,000 dependents and 250,000 men in uniform. There are 90,000 children enrolled in Army and Air Force schools.

Austrian Consul's Wife Likes The Absence of Credit Cards

Vienna, land of romantic enchantment and musical magic, protects its brilliant heritage despite enemy occupation and economic changes through the years. Though the country has succumbed to many modern elements, there is still one guardian of the serenity of the homemaker: Credit cards and charge accounts are yet unknown in Austria.

And Mrs. Elizabeth Weiser, wife of the Austrian consul to South Africa, likes it that way.

As the mother of two teen-age sons and the wife of a diplomat, pretty Mrs. Weiser has had to get used to "quite a few changes" since she moved to Capetown with her husband nearly eight years ago.

During a visit to Atlanta, where the Weisers were guests of their close friends, Austrian Consul and Mrs. Robert Bunzl, the Viennese beauty recalled some of those problems. She tabbed getting used to charge-account living a major hurdle since leaving her home in Vienna.

"At home," the statuesque blonde explained, "there were no charge accounts. We paid cash for everything. And we did our shopping every day by going to the markets. In Capetown — as in America — there are charge accounts and women use the telephone to call in their orders, sometimes ordering all the food for a week. That's hard to get used to.

Servants are no problem in Capetown, Mrs. Weiser said, but she prefers to do most of the cooking herself.

"Naturally, we prefer the Viennese dishes," she added, "and it is simpler to prepare them myself than give lessons to someone else."

Women's organizations are active in Capetown, she reports.

but the emphasis is on welfare, charity and temperance.

"The women do very little in the political field," Mrs. Weiser said.

A true diplomat's wife, the tall, slim blonde shies from discussing politics, but declared she found the recent United Nations General Assembly "most interesting." Some of it she saw first hand.

"Before coming to Atlanta," Mrs. Weiser said, "we had a wonderful visit in New York. There we were like all other tourists. We took the boat trip around Manhattan, went to the top of the Empire State Building, and sat in on the African debates in the United Nations."

She said that, although they recognize and respect the legends of romance and music, men and women in Vienna work as hard as all other people. There are vivid reminders of World War II, particularly for the attractive visitor.

"My first son, Herbert, now

16, was born in 1944. I was in the hospital at home. The next day, the bombardment started. Fortunately, neither my son nor I suffered any ill effects," she said.

Mrs. Weiser declared that young people in Capetown have problems on the same level as youngsters in other countries. There is some juvenile delinquency, but "it is no worse than in Europe or America."

Teen-agers usually gather for parties in the home of friends; girls are not allowed to go out on dates.

The Capetown boys and girls like the same entertainment that American youngsters prefer — including rock 'n' roll music.

"Sometimes," Mrs. Weiser said, "I try to get my boys to listen to some of the finer music, such as Beethoven. Their answer is always the same:

"Ah Mother, that's for old people, not for us."

Lady Bosses Win Over Prejudices

By JEAN ROONEY

"If I were boss around here..."

Two attractive Atlanta visitors can tell you exactly what they'd do. In fact, they've been doing it for years, as veteran lady bosses in large northern companies.

Ordering an office staff around is no cinch, the poised pair—Miss Irene D. Kreidberg of Minneapolis and Miss Jewell V. Lunceford of Wilmington, Del., admit. They were in Atlanta for a conference of the National Office Management Association.

Miss Kreidberg, a trim brunette, is a branch office manager of a national office machine company, supervising some 45 men and women. Miss Lunceford, who grew up in Atlanta, has managed the purchasing department staff of a national loan company for the past 15 years.

Though acceptance is growing, the lady boss still has plenty of old and new fields to conquer, both admit.

WORKS TWICE AS HARD

"And she still works twice as hard to hold her position as a man does," Miss Kreidberg says.

They've learned — the hard way — several "do's" and "don'ts" for running an office smoothly, among them:

Don't try to win a popularity contest.

"You know you'll get criticized. Learn to accept and expect it," Miss Lunceford, a pretty blue-eyed brunette, says.

Bossing men as well as women, the two have discovered the paradox that a woman boss can "sell" a man employee faster than a feminine worker.

"You must do a real selling job on a woman," Miss Kreidberg has found. And she means "selling" the company and her right to boss as well as herself.

A lady boss needs to know her psychology and use it constantly, they agree.

GALS MORE TEMPERAMENTAL

"Yes, employees have temperament," Miss Lunceford admits, "gals probably more than the men."

But she has learned to recognize and discount it.

"You either go home and blow your stack or go out and take a walk around the block," she suggests.

Though employees may not believe it, the boss has nerves, too. But she must keep them 100 per cent under control, the two stress.

If she's the emotional type herself, she shouldn't be bossing, they say.

FIRST BIG HURDLE

Convincing a staff it will get fair treatment and an even chance is the first big hurdle a lady supervisor meets. If she succeeds it pays off in trust and loyalty.

They've developed these tricks:

Let your workers know you're willing to hear their side. Give them an opportunity to sit in on planning. Give frequent job reviews, and be ready to justify promotions.

A gal administrator has a couple of advantages over her male counterparts, they think:

REPUBLICAN WOMAN

Undersecretary Will Visit Here

Georgians next week will play host to another top-ranking Republican Party figure when Miss Bertha Adkins, Undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, arrives to address a gathering of local GOP supporters.

On Friday, Oct. 28, Miss Adkins will hold a press conference prior to a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club. More than 600 persons are expected to attend the luncheon at 12:30, when Miss Adkins will be guest speaker. A private reception, hosted by local Republican leaders, will precede the luncheon.

A native of Salisbury, Md., where she still maintains a home, Miss Adkins was appointed to her present position by President Eisenhower in 1958. A graduate of Wellesley College, she received a master of arts degree from Columbia in 1943.

Miss Adkins was dean of women at Western Maryland College from 1934 to 1942.

TOBE SAYS:

New Fall Suits Feature Fur

What is more luxurious than a suit with fur? It cuddles, it flatters, and this year it's smart.

You may choose a short jacket suit with little or lots of fur, but be sure your collar shape is dated 1960. For instance, a standup ring or soft round circle, either one set away from the neck. If you're a mink devotee, you may prefer any one of the many light mutations that look newer than dark ranch mink. Small leopard, this season's pet fur revival, is also very appropriate.

The softly belted suit that I like so much this season had its first fashion endorsement in the Paris collections last February. Now it is an established winner.

"Easy going" sums up the look of these often colorful suits, especially with mid-hip jackets. "Easy going" because they have a touch of softness both above and below the belted waistline.

Sky View PTA Hosts Fall Festival

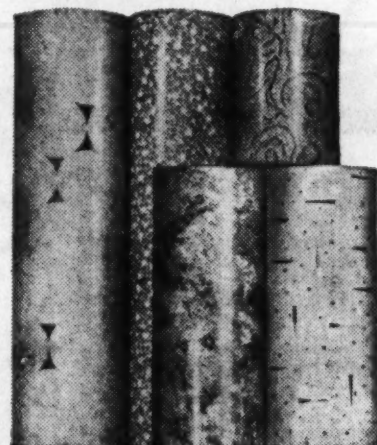

A turkey dinner, games and fun are on tap Saturday, 5 to 9 p.m., when Sky View Elementary School in Mableton stages a Fall Festival on the school grounds.

The school's King, Queen and Royal Family will also be crowned. The PTA is sponsoring the event with Mrs. Doyle White as president and Mrs. Jack Hines in charge of dinner preparations.

Today's schools are modern in design, airy, well-lighted. They're a far cry from the old one-room schoolhouse. But even with the emphasis on education in this age and modern facilities to house our students, the one-room schoolhouse isn't extinct, yet. Douglas Kiker, Journal staffer, visits some of the remaining one room structures to see how they rate in the current international education race.

2 Convicts Indicted in Cell Deaths

Two youthful convicts have been indicted on murder charges in the fatal stabbings of two other prisoners during a pre-dawn "gang" fight inside Reidsville State Prison, a Tattall County Superior Court official said Thursday.

The Tattall Grand Jury returned murder indictments against prisoners William Houser, 20, and James Louis Driver, 19, as the result of an Oct. 3 prison dormitory fight that left two inmates dead and two others wounded.

Superior Court Clerk Johnny Kicklighter said the grand jury also indicted two prisoners—Billy M. Lee, 19, and Robert Jerry Waites, 20—on charges of assault with intent to murder.

TRIAL EXPECTED SOON

Houser and Driver probably will stand trial on the murder charges during the week of Oct. 31 in Tattall Superior Court before Atlantic Judicial Circuit Judge Henry H. Durrence, Kicklighter said.

The indictments charged Houser with fatally stabbing inmate Gerald Frost, 22, and Driver with "cutting, stabbing and mortally wounding" prisoner Rex Andrews, 22.

The grand jury returned its indictments after hearing evidence presented by State Prison Warden R. P. Balkcom Jr. and Atlantic Sol. Gen. Bruce D. Dubberly, who investigated the bloody affray that was fought with crude, homemade weapons in Dormitory F-1.

WARDEN CHECKS RECORDS

Warden Balkcom checked prison records Thursday in response to a request and said Houser is serving a 3 to 5-year burglary sentence from Lowndes County and Driver 6 to 9 years from Coweta and Hall counties for burglary, forgery, larceny of an auto and simple larceny.

Kicklighter said the assault-to-murder charges against Lee and Waites resulted from the stab wounds inflicted during the fight on Tommy Gay, 24, and John Williamson, 19.

Balkcom said Lee is serving an 18 to 20-year burglary sentence from Hall County and Waites a 12-year robbery and morals sentence from Fulton and DeKalb counties.

ALL SERVED AT ALTO

All four prisoners indicted, said Balkcom, initially began serving their prison terms at the Alto Training School for Boys. They "couldn't adjust" at Alto and had to be sent to Reidsville, he said, adding that they "definitely have been disciplinary problems."

After extensive questioning of Dormitory F-1's 40-odd inmates, Balkcom said earlier this month that the killings apparently resulted from animosity that sprang up between two rival cliques which had been "fussing about their work detail."

Peiping Claims U.S. Violation

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charges that a U.S. naval patrol plane intruded into its territorial air space over Yungshing in the Paracel Islands Thursday. Peiping radio, quoting a spokesman of the Foreign Ministry, said China has issued its 1,245th "serious warning" to the United States against such actions.

What To Do
If the Skin
Is Too Dry

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can one do about dry skin? Please don't say it's just old age for I have had it since I was 9 and I am now 60. No, it hasn't killed me, but boy, I've suffered with it! Doctors say I am in good physical condition.—C. M.P.

No, I won't say it's just old age, because it isn't. As we grow old enough to approach the age of discretion, our skin tends to become dry, but as you well know, some people have naturally dry skin.

The cause of dry skin isn't a sheer lack of moisture; it's a lack of the oil which flows from the sebaceous, or oil, glands in the skin. Some of us have such glands which are singularly inactive.

With most of us, the glands replace oil so quickly we don't suffer from dry skin after we've been swimming or had a bath. But the dry skin sufferer should bathe as infrequently as is compatible with cleanliness. He should never take a hot bath; but should keep the water at comfortable lukewarm temperature. It will remove less oil. Don't soak. Keep the bath as short as possible.

In addition the dry skinned may use an unscented bath oil in the water. I suggest about four tablespoonsful to a tub.

All soaps are "drying" in that they remove oil from the skin. So if you have dry skin, use the superfatted soaps. There are many brands on the market.

Salicylic acid in low concentration in a cream base is very effective in reducing itching and scaling of the skin. However, since the acid is absorbed through the skin and can cause the same symptoms as aspirin poisoning, apply such a cream only under your doctor's guidance. Used correctly, it will help a great deal and do no harm.

In winter wear warm but loose clothing, and be sure to keep the house very humid. If your furnace doesn't have a humidifier, use humidifier pans on the radiators, or in other ways keep the air from becoming too dry. Large, flat pans of water will send an amazing amount of moisture into dry air.

If you have dry skin, don't be a member of the "open window club" for wintertime sleeping, because much of the moisture in the house is lost that way. And the drier the air, the more annoyance to you.

Lastly, avoid wearing wool next to the skin. Wool fibers have a tendency to cause or increase the itching from dry skin.

Here are three bidding problems for you to consider. How would you handle them? The suggested answers are presented below along with the play of today's hand.

1. You are South and hold these cards:

♠ Q J 6
♥ K 5
♦ K 7
♣ K 10 8 6 5 3

The bidding has gone:

East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1♣

What call do you make?

2. You are South and hold these cards:

♠ K 10 7 4
♥ K 8 5 3
♦ A 7 6 2

The bidding has gone:

3. You are South and hold these cards:

♥ 7 6 4
♦ K 10 8 5
♣ K J 5

The bidding has gone:

West North East South
1♣ Dbl. Pass ?

What call do you make?

4. You are declarer of today's four-heart hand, and West opens the seven of spades, East taking the queen and shifting to a low trump. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. South jumps to three no-trump, seeing a fine play for game. Two no-trump or three clubs would not be forcing after the original pass. Three clubs, moreover, gives North a chance to say the three no-trump, in which case South's red kings will not be protected against the opening lead.

2. South bids four clubs. Not knowing which suit to choose, he makes a cue bid and lets North make the decision.

3. South bids one no-trump, which shows a good hand in this situation. His hand is too good for a discouraging one-diamond reply. Although South has little in spades and nothing in hearts, his partner's double has implied strength in both majors.

4. South makes game by immediately ducking a club trick. He must get rid of a spade loser to make game, but he won't be able to ruff it, for if he leads a second spade, the defense will knock out dummy's last trump. If he instead draws trumps and tries the clubs, the defense will cash two more spades for down one, for dummy will have no trump left to stop the third round of spades.

The winning play is to take the heart ace at trick two and lead a low club from dummy, giving up the club trick that must be lost in any event. Now if East leads two more spades, declarer will ruff the last spade in dummy. If East takes but one spade and next knocks out dummy's last trump, South will draw trumps and discard his remaining spade on a long club. He loses one club and two spade tricks.

Suddenly Next Summer

During the past few days there has been considerable space devoted to Atlanta's prospects of obtaining Triple A baseball next season.

Avid football fans tackled us on various corners around town yesterday and heatedly inquired if we had lost our calendar. They pointed out that football season is in full swing, a fact of which we are very much aware.

"Who cares whether Atlanta remains in the Southern Association or gets Triple A?" one gentleman said. "As long as Atlanta is not in the major leagues the public doesn't give a damn."

And, as Col. Ed Danforth used to say, "Who knows? He may be right."

Box office response to last season's Southern Association champions at Poncey proved once and for all that local citizens no longer want AA baseball. There's been nothing to indicate that the customers are overly interested in Triple A baseball.

They do want major league baseball. Based on conversations and mail over a long period, they want pro football, even more. But, of course, that topic leads to the tiresome subject of a stadium.

Atlanta will not have a stadium until the city lends its financial support. Mayor William Hartsfield has made it clear over more than two decades that his administration has no intention of building a stadium.

An irate and uninformed citizen recently wrote us a lengthy epistle in which he charged that the local newspapers were responsible for the absence of a stadium here. He claimed Atlanta would have major league baseball and football if the papers had supported a stadium. We believe Mayor Hartsfield could enlighten this man.

—There's No Gold Rush in Oakland

There's no need at present to keep harping on the prospects of a stadium. To put it bluntly and accurately, there are no prospects of a stadium right now. We are breaking our promise to refrain from writing about a stadium due to the large number of letters inquiring about pro football.

Eaton Chalkley, of course, has a tentative franchise in the American Football League. At least Lamar Hunt, father of the new circuit, says the Atlanta franchise hinges on construction of a stadium. Thus, technically, Atlanta does not have a pro franchise.

The group now engaged in semi-pro football at Poncey has hopes of mushrooming into a Southern Football League next season. No one was more skeptical of the Atlanta Rebels than this department. Yet, they drew more than 3,000 fans to their opener with Gordon Military College last Saturday night. They take on Bessemer Sunday afternoon at Poncey.

Jim Clay, who has carried the ball for pro football here, has not abandoned hopes of operating a team. Clay still feels that a pro team could survive at Poncey. In the past six months Clay has conferred with most of the owners of the National Football League. They are interested in Atlanta as a future member, but the NFL isn't coming here to play at Poncey. You can wager last year's wages on that.

Reports from the West Coast indicate that Chalkley or some other owner can have an AFL franchise here even without a stadium. A stupendous lack of interest in the Oakland team is resulting in a splash of red ink. Regardless of what Harry Wismer says, the Titans are proving a colossal flop at the gate in New York.

To become a major league sports city, Atlanta must erect a stadium. When the public demands a stadium, the politicians will build it. It's that simple.

—Confusion Surrounds Triple A Confusion

Now, just a few more words on Triple A seem appropriate to clear up a distorted report out of Birmingham.

A sports columnist attending the Southern Association meeting wrote: "So much confusion has been created out of the welter of loose talk and attempted maneuvering that on the same page of one paper the other day a sports columnist wrote that Miami probably would move to Atlanta in 1961, and another staffer wrote that the Dodgers would operate in Atlanta at the same time."

Much of the loose talk was started by a sports columnist who suggested that the Montreal franchise might be moved to Atlanta. Montreal is remaining in the International League; the Dodgers are pulling out of that city.

There was no statement in this column that Miami probably was moving to Atlanta. We merely made an accurate report that Bill McDonald wanted to bring the Miami Marlins here and the International League supported the shift. At the time Frank Shaughnessy made his unofficial pitch to the Southern for the Atlanta territory, Dodger generalissimo Buzzie Bavasi did not disprove the proposal.

After conferring with Atlanta Cracker GM Jerry Waring Bavasi cooled on the idea. Our Mr. Charlie Roberts quoted Mr. Waring as saying that the Dodgers would remain here.

Meanwhile, as the men on the corner say, it's homecoming day at Tech Saturday with Tulane as a guest and Georgia is playing Kentucky in Lexington.

ATHENS — Coach Wally Butts couldn't have made his point any clearer if he'd drawn a picture.

"This is it," he said on windy Ag Hill Thursday afternoon. "Either we whip Kentucky Saturday night, or we're doomed to a poor season."

"If we win it, we have a chance to finish about 7-3. If we lose it, we'll be lucky to break even."

And to hear Wailing Wally tell the story, Georgia has about as much chance of beating Kentucky as it would have licking the Baltimore Colts.

"People tell me Tech beat Kentucky so we're supposed to do the same," he said. "Well, that's crazy. Kentucky's 60 per cent better now than it was when Tech played 'em."

"I'll tell you what. I'll gladly trade my personnel right now for the Kentucky personnel . . . no questions asked. We simply don't have the line of scrimmage. Kentucky has."

"And another thing, playing 'em up there at night is terrible. I

Houk States He'll Be Boss

Coach Replaces Ousted Casey As Manager for One Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Ralph Houk, a former third string catcher with only minor league managerial experience, Thursday was named pilot of the New York Yankees to succeed Casey Stengel.

Houk, a former Army major, said he would be his own boss and would brook no front office interference.

"I am no 'yes man,'" the new manager said. "I intend to run the club on the field and make all the decisions. I will decide which men will play and which won't."

This was in obvious reference to Stengel's charge that the Yankee front office had indicated it intended to have a say in the managerial operations of the team on the field in the future.

Houk signed for a reported $35,000 a year, less than half the $85,000 paid Stengel, and the contract—at his own request—was limited to a single year.

"If I don't do the job next year, I don't want to manage the following year," the 41-year-old one-time Army Ranger told a noon press conference.

Announcement of Houk's elevation from that of coach of the Yankees, a post he held for three years at $15,000 a year, to the most celebrated managerial spot in the majors came as no great surprise.

He had been eyed by the Yankee brass since Stengel signed a two-year contract at the start of the 1959 season with indications it would be his last.

Dan Topping, co-owner of the Yankees, announced the new field boss in the presence of General Manager George Weiss, assistant general manager.

BILLY SHAW'S FLYING INTO THE FACE OF A FLOCK OF ENEMY OFFENSE
Tech Tackle's Standout Tactics Draw Praise from Coach and Pro Scouts, Groans from Opposing Linemen

Tech's Shaw Has Pro Scouts Talking; Klosterman Rates Him Ahead of Rice

By TED SIMMONS

There was plenty of football talk to go with the fine brisk football weather at Rose Bowl Field Thursday afternoon, and most of it centered around tackle Billy Shaw.

The fellow doing the talking was pro scout Don Klosterman of the AFL's Los Angeles Chargers.

"The guy," Klosterman told a small group huddled together against the chill of the afternoon wind, "is probably the finest line prospect in the South right now. He's got all the equipment, and he never stops hustling."

This bit of praise prompted

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd to tell a story of his own about the 235-pound senior from Toccoa.

"Billy," said Coach Dodd, "had a relatively poor game against Kentucky. The mistakes he made were pointed out to him. He realized he hadn't played well, and determined to do better."

"The next week against Rice he played a fine game. Every Saturday after that he played increasingly well. Last week against Auburn, the toughest team we've met, he played the best game he's ever played at Tech—and most of the time he was blocking one of the toughest boys in the country, Ken Rice."

"The first of the year," Klosterman said, "most of us were calling Rice the best football player in the country. Right now, Shaw ranks above him with every scout I've talked to."

While the talk continued, the object of it all hustled with his Jacket teammates through their last full workout before meeting Tulane Saturday.

The Green Wave is due in Friday, with a Grant Field drill scheduled to begin about the time Homecoming festivities are starting on the Flats.

The big news that has come out of this week's Tech practices concerns several shifts in the Jacket lineup. Sophomore Larry Stallings, a standout at his chores all season, moved ahead of senior Ed Nutting into the No. 1 spot at right tackle.

Mike McNamara, a soph who's been toiling with the red shirts, has taken the No. 2 fullback spot behind Ben Smith. Halfback Chick Graning secured, if he hadn't already, the offensive job at left halfback, with Tom Windinger being slated for the defense there.

And Coach Dodd announced his intention to play senior Marvin Tibbetts at offensive quarterback

Bill DeWitt Quits As Tiger President

DETROIT (AP)—Bill DeWitt's turbulent reign of less than one year as Detroit Tiger president ended today with his resignation under fire from the post that paid him $50,000 a year.

This latest in a series of shake-ups in the Tiger front office was expected.

DeWitt, who had two years left on a three-year contract signed only last Nov. 1, was criticized in recent weeks by some Tiger owners.

John E. Fetzer, a Kalamazoo, Mich., radio-television executive, replaced DeWitt and became the fourth Tiger president since 1956. Fetzer, who had heard a group owning one-third of the club's stock, purchased control of the Tigers just last week.

DeWitt, in resigning with an "amicable settlement," turned down Fetzer's offer to become assistant to the president.

Harry Sisson, executive vice president, replaced DeWitt and became the

OLD MINNESOTA MANAGER WILL MISS GAME THIS YEAR
Oscar Munson Seriously Ill, But Jug's History is His, Too, With Wolverines

AILING ORIGINATOR CLINGS TO 'LITTLE BROWN JUG'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—He is a frail old man, living now on a thousand memories of his football heroes, roaring crowds and the gay tomfoolery of the locker room.

In a corner of his sitting room, nearly ribboned in maroon and gold, stands a brown crock jug that Oscar Munson made a football legend.

He will not be in Ann Arbor Saturday to see Minnesota and Michigan meet again for possession of their historic trophy—a stand-in for Oscar's Little Brown Jug.

At 82, gravely ill, Oscar Munson is nearing what he calls "the last roundup for me."

A visitor inevitably must ask him about the jug, and the old man's eyes come alive when he recounts the story once more:

"People always are adding something or changing it," he said. "This is how it really happened:

"Michigan came here in 1903. They must have been worried about some funny business because they got a five-gallon crock to bring their own drinking water.

"I was the equipment manager for Minnesota. After the game—it was 6-6, a terrific game—I helped the Michigan man pack and told him to take the jug. He told me, 'Get that damn thing out of here,' and kicked it in a corner."

"Next day I found it there and took it to the training room as a souvenir. Doc Cooke (Oscar's boss in the athletic department) saw it and had me hang it above his desk.

"It was quite a while before they played Michigan again. When Yost (Fielding Yost, the Michigan coach) came to see Cooke he saw the jug. They decided to let it go back and forth with the winner of the game.

"Yost came and got it after they won, but it got broke at Michigan and Yost bought another for $35 in Red Wing. I saw one just like it in our pharmacy building and had it painted up."

Totten Rehires Ump Girard; Memphis Decision Awaited

'Should Know By Monday'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—League President Hal Totten said Thursday night he will mail a new contract to Frank Girard, one of the six Southern Association umpires he released Wednesday. He also said he may bring two or three others back.

Totten said he has heard from two other umpires, "But I haven't answered them yet."

He also said he expects to know by the first of next week whether Memphis will be in the league next year. League directors Wednesday lifted the Memphis franchise, but, on the plea of Mayor Henry Loeb of Memphis, postponed reassigning it to another city.

Totten in his first year as president of the class AA league, said he released six of the league's nine umpires so they would have the chance to say whether they wanted to work in the Southern Association. He said the other three said earlier that they wanted to stay.

"Frank Girard called me from New Orleans today," Totten said. "He said he wanted to come back and I said 'O.K. Frank, you will get a contract.'"

The others released were Charles P. Butler, Russell Lee Fisher, Eugene Merton Haack, Walter J. Welaj, and Ralph Daugherty.

Robert Burns, Don Fisher and Matt Pappas had said during the season that they wanted to stay, Totten said, "So I didn't release them."

Totten, winding up his first season at the helm of the Southern, declined to identify the other two umpires who have responded. Referring to the six he released, he said:

"I'm willing to bring at least three of them back, maybe four."

Totten said he set no time limit on the Memphis situation but added:

"An answer, of necessity, must be forthcoming very quickly."

"Mayor Loeb is meeting with a group of very interested citizens and officials," he said. "They are exploring the possibilities of (1) raising sufficient money and (2) the possibility of getting a ball park up in time for the opening of the season."

The Memphis park burned at the start of last season and the team operated this year in two makeshift parks.

ager Roy Hamer and Houk himself.

Stengel, who by his own description was fired last Tuesday because of his age (70), was not present. He is preparing for a weekend return to his Glendale, Calif., home. His future plans still are indefinite.

Topping made no mention of other administrative changes in the Yankee organization, which are reported imminent.

Weiss, who succeeded Ed Barrow as general manager of the Yankee empire, is slated to be moved upstairs to the chairmanship of the board of directors. He would be replaced by Hamer with Jack White, former Yankee ticket manager, moving in as assistant general manager.

Houk, a native of Lawrence, Kan., who now makes his home in Saddle River, N.J., is a mild-mannered, self-assured man who won a Silver Star for distinguished service with the Army Rangers during World War II.

He rose from private to the rank of major with the 89th Reconnaissance Group. He was in one of the first waves to hit Normandy Beach on D-Day.

The new Yankee pilot was just 18 when he broke into professional baseball with Neosho, Mo., of the Arkansas-Missouri League. He moved up through the Yankee farm system and joined the parent club as a catcher in 1947 from Beaumont of the Texas league.

He was never much more than a bullpen receiver. In 1955 he went to Denver of the American Association as manager. He guided the team to a tie for third place and two second place finishes before returning to the Yankees as coach in 1958.

At Denver, he had a hand in training such future Yankee stars as Ralph Terry, Ryne Duren, Bobby Richardson, Tony Kubek and John Blanchard.

Edwards, Gullidge Named To Lead Tigers Saturday

Burson Out Of Hospital

AUBURN, Ala.—End Dave Edwards and guard Jerry Gullidge were named by Coach Ralph Jordan Thursday to captain the Auburn Tigers against Miami at Cliff Hare Stadium Saturday.

"Edwards turned in one of the finest defensive end jobs we've had last Saturday against Georgia Tech," said Jordan. "Gullidge, as usual, was all over the field on pursuit, and on one occasion a tackle he made on Chick Graning saved a sure touchdown."

Edwards, a junior, is from Abbeville, Ala., while Gullidge is a 205-pound junior from Mobile.

This is the second week in a row that Edwards, who goes by the nickname of Murdock, has helped lead the Tigers. Against Tech he and junior guard Jimmy Putman of Birmingham were the game captains.

He becomes the first Auburn man to be honored twice by Jordan.

Auburn took a light workout in sweatclothes Thursday in Cliff Hare Stadium. They worked on sharpening up their running attack and on defense. Practice closed with a punting drill.

Jimmy Burson, sophomore half-back from LaGrange, Ga., was released from a hospital in his home town Thursday but not in time to make the practice session.

"We had hoped Burson would get in some work Thursday," said Jordan. "His chances of playing much Saturday were dulled somewhat by missing this session."

Burson, Auburn's leading ground gainer and the SEC leader in two departments, said he felt "a little weak" over the five-day bout with an infected hand and a high temperature.

"My legs feel good," he added. "But I kind of ache like you do when a cold is coming on. I want to play, though, and hope my condition is good enough."

Miami will fly into Columbus, Ga. Friday and make their headquarters there. The Hurricanes plan no workout at Cliff Hare.

BOSTON — Bobby Hull of Chicago and Bronco Horvath of Boston scored 39 goals each during the National League season. Hull led in points, 81 to 80.

Butts Calls Kentucky Must Win

wouldn't feel so bad if we had 'em here in the sunshine."

Despite Butts' pessimism or maybe because of it, the Bulldogs had a corking good practice session Thursday. Dressed in sweat clothes, the Georgians reviewed all phases of their game in a spirited session.

The Georgia traveling party leaves by plane Friday at 1 p.m., and will stage a final limbering up session upon arrival in Lexington.

Flingin' Francis Tarkenton showed sharp form in a passing drill. The Bulldogs' success Saturday night will depend upon how well Mr. Tarkenton operates.

In Kentucky, the Bulldogs will be meeting the best passing team they've faced this season. Wildcat Quarterback Jerry Woolum ranks third behind Tarkenton and Ole Miss' Jake Gibbs in passing yardage.

And Kentucky receivers Tom Hutchinson and Dave Gash are set for a mighty duel with the Bulldogs' two best catchers, Bill McKenny and Clyde Childers.

Hutchinson has caught 13 this season while the other three have 12 each.

Butts, however, is concerned over the physical condition of Childers, a sophomore from Massillon, Ohio. "He's got a bad hip," the coach said, "and we won't know until gametime whether he'll be able to play."

Others on the growing injury list are center Phil Ashe, guard

Wildcats Map Defenses for Georgia Plays

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky's football team used part of a review session Thursday to continue work on the defense to be used against Georgia Saturday night.

The Wildcats were hampered Wednesday, their regular defensive practice day, by heavy rain. Thursday they worked on defensive adjustments against Georgia plays, including the passes of Bulldog quarterback Francis Tarkenton.

For the first time this week, all the Kentucky gridgers except senior quarterback Tom Rodgers were in uniform. Rodgers definitely is out with a shoulder separation.

Bill Worrell, tackle Fred Lawrence, end Jack Shamblin, and Don Tomberlin and guard Ken Vann.

Butts doubts that either Ashe or Worrell will be able to play. The others might see some action.

BULLDOG BRIEFS: Butts likes to remind people that his players voted Kentucky the best team they faced last year. Georgia won that one in the rain, 14-7. . . . The Bulldogs have worked hard this week to set up a defense for Kentucky halfback Charley Sturgeon. The fleet Wildcat gained 144 yards rushing in last year's game. . . .

The Georgia coaches have nominated halfback Billy Jackson of Pensacola, Fla., for rookie Back-of-the-Year honors in the SEC. . . . Kentucky hasn't whipped Georgia since 1956 when it turned the trick at Athens, 14-7. The Bulldogs lead the series, 8-4-1. . . . Butts says end Shamblin "plays strictly on guts." He keeps swollen knees all the time," the coach said, "but keeps plugging."

The loss was Russell's first in the conference and left it with a 4-1 record. Osborne is 5-2 in league play. Russell plays South Cobb (5-1) next week in a game which should decide the sub-region championship.

Russell never threatened in the game, penetrating Osborne territory twice, to the 45 and 43-yard lines. Osborne almost made a second score late in the fourth quarter, driving to the Russell two with two downs to go. Russell took over on the eight.

Why not yours?

What makes Valiant such a matinee idol? Good looks, of course. A case of love at first sight for most women. Courtly manner. Caters to a lady's slightest whim, skipping through tangled traffic or scooting into a size 7 parking space. On the highway, Valiant's the strong, silent type—as you'd expect of its unitized body.

Valiant's Torsion-Aire suspension carpets the roughest roads around. And what a beautiful bargain. Valiant—a low-priced compact last year—has reduced prices for 1961! And its inclined engine sips fuel so sparingly, it often seems Valiant is running on its good looks alone. Why not introduce your bride to Valiant? Take heed, however; stern measures may be necessary to keep her mind on household chores when Valiant whispers: Let's go driving . . .

 more than he has in Tech's first five games.

"We're going to go with Marvin maybe half of the time," said Dodd. "He's proved to us he can do the job. He's moved the ball well against everybody we've played."

Except at those positions, Tech's lineup will be unchanged against the Greenies. None of the injured, the most important of these being senior center Willie McGaughey, returned to action, but no names were added to the list.

Two managers departed — both with blasts at DeWitt — in the hectic year of his control. But it was Joe Gordon's surprise resignation as manager — just two months after he took over — that started DeWitt's downfall.

Tiger owners were critical when DeWitt engineered the unique managerial swap with Cleveland that sent Jimmie Dykes to the Indians and brought Gordon to the Tigers.

DeWitt said he would like to remain in baseball — his life ever since he sold peanuts as a boy in St. Louis' old Sportsman's Park in 1915. But he said his future plans are indefinite.

Clay Holds Lead in Windy Rome

Special to The Constitution
 ROME — Six Atlanta women were left Thursday in the championship flight of the ninth annual medal play tournament for the Eleanor Keeler Trophy being held at the Coosa Country Club here.

The top flight was cut from 18 to eight Thursday, as the soggy turf and strong north winds made playing conditions tough.

Mrs. Jim Clay of Atlanta held on to her lead with a 43-45-88 to go with her 76 of Wednesday, a 164 total. Mrs. Sidney Smith, also of Atlanta, is second, five strokes back at 169, and Wednesday's runner-up, Mrs. Grady McDonald of Atlanta fell to a 91 Thursday, for a 170 total.

Mrs. Tom Burdeshaw of Hampton is fourth with a 176, and Mrs. Larry Martin of Atlanta, fifth with a 178.

TOURNEY NOTES—Mrs. William Hall of Albany, playing in the second flight, had the day's best score, turning in a 42-41-83, after chipping in for a deuce on 17. . . . Jennings Gordon, president of the Southern Men's Golfing Association, is acting as starter for the tourney, and Forrest Shropshire and Dom Caceris are scorers. . . . Mrs. Roy Burns and Mrs. Curtis Jordan of Columbus flew in Thursday for the board meeting of the Georgia Women's Golf Association. . . . New officers of the association elected Thursday are Mrs. William Hall, chairman of the board; Mrs. Billy Jennings of Augusta, president; Mrs. Larry Martin of Atlanta, vice president; Mrs. John A. Simpson of Athens, treasurer; Mrs. Hubert Hadley of Pine Mountain, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. T. E. McGeachy of Atlanta, recording secretary. . . . The 1961 State tournament will be held at Druid Hills Country Club in Atlanta, and the fall medalist tournament at Radium Springs Country Club in Albany.

Which of these two whiskies is insured for One Million Dollars?

Answer:

The whiskey in the bottle on the left. It is drawn from the limited stock of Calvert Reserve's precious "Standard of Excellence." This limited stock, insured by a world famous insurance company for one million dollars, is never sold.

The Calvert Reserve on the right, and every bottle you buy, must match this "Standard of Excellence" for superb flavor, aroma and smoothness.

Excellence like this is attained by combining as many as 35 great straight whiskies with rare grain neutral spirits. The reason: All straight whiskies vary from distillation to distillation. They are never the same.

Thanks to this priceless "Standard of Excellence" you are assured that Calvert Reserve's magnificent taste and character never vary from bottle to bottle.

Gold Rush Staged In Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street's rush into gold shares heightened in a weird session compounded of speculative daring and blank discouragement. Trading was moderate.

It was a bull market in the golds and a bear market in practically everything else except copper. Investors were aware that some copper producers also mine a quantity of gold.

The continued rise in gold stocks accompanied a further spurt in the London bullion market and more concern expressed about the drain on U.S. gold reserves, a flight from the dollar and a possible future increase in the $35 per ounce paid for gold by the U.S. Treasury.

Early in the afternoon, however, the Treasury issued a statement reaffirming its "firm position" of maintaining the price at $35. The gold stocks wilted at the impact of this news but partially recovered late in the day when the rest of the market was sliding to its worst level of the session.

An estimated $1.8 billion was shorn from the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

While traders were selling other stocks for a fare-thee-well, however, they rushed into the gold shares so feverishly that nine of these placed among the 15 most active stocks, an astounding performance for this heretofore quiet group.

MARKET DETAILS

Brunswick, of 3%, suffered further profit taking.

Some electronics were hit badly. Radio Corp. fell 3/4 after reporting a sharp drop in nine-month earnings despite a climb in sales above the billion-dollar mark for the first time—another item in the profit-squeeze picture. It was the stock market's fourth straight daily decline. Most steels, rails, motors and tobaccos were fractionally lower. Ford dropped 2 points in advance of a report of lower earnings.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed. Gold shares on this exchange also advanced solidly.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds advanced for the third straight day. Trading was moderate both for corporate and U.S. government bonds.

Blooper About Hoobert Heever Hangs in Minds of Broadcasters

By PAUL JONES

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, I'd like to present the President of the United States, Mr. Hoobert Heever."

Jones

That blooper has haunted radio announcer Harry Von Zell since the memorable day when he introduced the chief executive to an attentive radio audience many, many years ago.

And that blooper has hung in the minds of radio and television broadcasters, too. No one, given the responsibility of introducing an important figure is ever rid of any real or imagined fears until his job has been executed.

He is, he admits, as nervous as a donkey at a Republican dinner.

"My job will be to moderate the discussion. To me the responsibilities are enormous."

"With an audience of somewhere near 70 million Americans looking in and listening,

PLAYING POLITICS
Bob Hope

there is far too much at stake for us not to concern ourselves with even the smallest safeguard.

"It is unlikely," said Howe, who is noted for many distinguished contributions to broadcasting, "that a sudden emergency will arise — the rules of discussion and the candidates themselves make it almost impossible.

"To me the outstanding feature of the debates, thus far, has been the extraordinary skill both candidates have shown in their ad lib discussions of political issues.

"The wonder is that the debates have been so good. Much has been gained and learned from these face-to-face meetings and I feel even more will come from this fourth debate (which is being carried on all TV channels and on WSB-Radio from 9 to 10 p.m.)

Howe has one very real fear as time of the fourth debate approaches.

"I'm afraid," said Mr. Howe, "that I might refer to Mr. Nixon as Mr. Kennedy or to Mr. Kennedy as Mr. Nixon."

"Of course, it's unlikely," Howe chuckled, "but remember Hoobert Heever."

I certainly do, Mr. Howe, and 70 million people would probably wonder which of the candidates is Mr. Nixon and which is Mr. Kennedy should you juggle the lineup.

WHILE ON THE SUBJECT OF POLITICS I might point out that Bob Hope will take a satirical jab at the candidates in his "Potomac Madness" special Saturday night on NBC-TV (Ch. 2-8:30).

J. Edward McKinley, great nephew of the rock-ribbed Republican who was assassinated in 1901 at the start of his second term in office, is going to play the part of a Southern Democratic senator in the timely spoof. (Perry Como and Ginger Rogers will play other parts).

"I feel a little guilty," said McKinley, "But I tell myself an actor is like a lawyer—he has to be impartial."

In spite of his thespian betrayal of his great-uncle's political affiliation, J. Edward is proud of his relative.

And, in accepting the role in Hope's satire, he isn't giving in to any desire to belittle the 1960 presidential candidates. "When I've made up my mind as to their relative merits I'll vote for one or the other."

"But that's just the trouble," said McKinley. "Elections today are a little too much like the parody we've created in 'Potomac Madness'—you can't tell the candidates without a score card."

"It wasn't like that when Great-Uncle William ran for office. You were either for him or against him—and you didn't have the slightest doubt why."

There have been others in politics equally dedicated to their aims and views.

Our American Heritage (Ch. 2-7:30) tonight will deal with another campaign in which the debate played a key role: "Alexander Hamilton versus Thomas Jefferson." Arthur Kennedy and Ralph Bellamy will play the principals.

WSB Opens Mike Tonight On Platforms

Editors of The Atlanta Constitution and The Journal and state leaders of both political parties will participate in a special Open Mike discussion of "Party Platforms" at 8:30 p.m., Friday, on WSB radio.

Participants are: Eugene Patterson, editor of The Constitution; Jack Spalding, editor of The Journal; Griffin Bell, co-chairman of the Democratic campaign in Georgia; Robert Snodgrass, Republican National Committeeman. Roger Peterson of the WSB news staff will moderate the program.

Immediately following the Open Mike discussion, WSB Radio will present the last in the series of Great Debates. It will begin at 9 p.m. Candidates Nixon and Kennedy will discuss "Foreign Policy."

Film Club Features

The Travel Film Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Atlanta Public Library and view "Alaskan Eskimo" and "Siam."

BEST BET—The fourth, and probably the last, of the Nixon-Kennedy debates goes on Friday. Although the representatives of both candidates are considering some possible last-minute changes, the basic plan calls for a return to the format of the opener.

Both men will give opening and closing statements (since Kennedy went first originally, Nixon will open this one and get the last word at the end); a series of questions and answers will go between. This time, the subject matter is limited to foreign policy. This program will come from New York, in the same studio where Kennedy was seen on the split-screen debate.

There's a slight difference in the physical set-up of the studio. The two debaters will be at separate podiums but the moderator this time will be at the panelists' table, seated in the middle of the four questioners.

10-11 (CHS. 2, 5, 11)

7:30-8:30 (CH. 2)—A couple of one-time presidential candidates, Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, debate a few issues as Our American Heritage begins its season Friday.

The last years of Hamilton's life, climaxed by his fatal duel with Aaron Burr, are emphasized.

The program last year did a show about Jefferson, and Mrs. Mildred Freed Alberg, the producer, tells us she became so fascinated with Hamilton as a by-product of her Jefferson research that she was determined to do a show about him. Many of the same players who appeared in the Jefferson drama will be in this — Ralph Bellamy as Jefferson, Arthur Kennedy as Hamilton, Howard St. John as Washington — plus Roddy

Mrs. Alberg says they learned a great deal from last year's experience; this year the scripts are tighter and more dramatic. Lowell Thomas takes over as host for the year.

7-8 (Ch. 5) — Dan O'Herlihy, as pinch-trail boss, is in charge of Friday's lap on Rawhide's cattle drive. The story line has Gil Favor (Eric Fleming) ill, so he hires O'Herlihy to take over, arousing some jealousy in the minds of lesser drivers. Actually, the producers weren't sure they would keep Fleming so they filmed this one just in case. They believed that if they decided to drop Fleming, O'Herlihy would be ready to take over. Eventually, they re-hired Fleming, so this one is really a
